

TO PREVENT NOMINATION AT CHICAGO

Allies Rely on Fairbanks For That Pur- pose

TAFT'S BROTHER PRESENT

Roosevelt Will Not Receive Third Term if Combine Can Prevent it.

Chicago, June 5.—With the entrance of the Republican Presidential contest into its second stage comes an imposing array of "battlefield" rumors. These differ radically from those of the first stage, which was that of the selection of delegates, but they have the same trend.

The point of difference is the advancing of a new variety of reasons why Secretary of War William H. Taft cannot be nominated. When this present stage, that of settling the contests, has been passed, and the finale is reached, that of voting in convention, perhaps a third variety will burst into flower.

The name of these rumors is legion and their description baffles the pen. Whether true or false or a mixture of both they serve a purpose. It is to prove that the opposition to Secretary Taft was not boasting when the declaration was made that the fight would be carried on until the last delegate on the final roll call was summoned to cast his vote. Today it is alert, active and agile, seizing every opportunity to detract from the reported Taft strength and to magnify the opposition to his nomination.

It is true that there is but little material upon which to work, the Assembly politicians being in the main members of the National committee of contesting delegations or attorneys for claimants. This fact does not interfere with the zeal of the "allies," so called General direction of this demonstration against Taft appears to be in the hands of the Fairbanks adherents, led by Joseph P. Kealing of Indiana. He has declared that his candidates would not accept a nomination as vice president.

"I am authorized to make this statement on behalf of Mr. Fairbanks." Then he proceeded to show that the boom for that statesman was a clever Taft trick to injure him as a Presidential possibility by cheapening his position in the contest.

"We are here to fight this battle through for the Presidency and to take our chances with the rest of the candidates," he said. "We believe that Secretary Taft cannot secure enough delegates to nominate himself on the first ballot. We further believe that can show the delegates that he is not the man to nominate. That accomplished, we purpose to try and nominate Mr. Fairbanks."

This statement seems to fully cover the situation as it is regarded apart from the many startling and vexing rumors. The allies intend by hook, crook or main strength to keep a nomination from being made on the first ballot. After that, the deluge. The vital weakness of the Taft line, they assert, is in different views taken of him in the East and West. Where Roosevelt is popular delegates who adore that leader have been chosen for Taft because they believe he will carry out the administration policies. Where the president is not popular delegates have been named for precisely opposite reasons. Yesterday Mr. Kealing quoted from a letter written by a delegate from a Western State instructed for Taft, in which the writer declared that he would be justified in breaking his instructions because of the revelations concerning that candidate and the Standard Oil and Steel Trusts.

"If these two wings of the Taft army should collide, they say, his extinction would be assured."

To sustain and stay the claim that Taft cannot go through on the first ballot, the Fairbanks bureau puts out figures allowing him but 359 votes, as against 392 hostile delegates and 229 involved in contests. In other words, they say that the issue is to be decided by the committee on credentials. Both Charles P. Taft of Cincinnati, and Frank M. Hitchcock of Washington, denied the accuracy of these calculations. Mr. Hitchcock insists that Taft will have 584 votes.

The candidate's brother asserted that the nomination would be made upon the first ballot.

Mr. Charles P. Taft came from Cincinnati and took up quarters in the Auditorium Annex, where he will remain until the fight is over. Throughout the day he was in conference with Mr. Hitchcock upon the matter of the important Alabama contest, which will be the first to be taken up today.

The arrival of Mr. Taft was not lost upon the allies, as an opportunity for the claim that the Secretary's organization was "up in the air" and was shouting for help. To it was added the obvious untruth that Charles L. Kurtz and United States Senator Dick of Ohio had arrived, and that the Foraker headquarters were open for business.

That will not be done until next week, but the Joseph G. Cannon headquarters were opened at the Auditorium by his secretary, John C. Eversman.

Congressman James Francis Burke arrived today from Pittsburgh and flung the Knox banner to the breeze. For some reason the Hughes outfit does not seem to chime with the other allies, perhaps because A. R. Humphries, the manager of the New York boom, insists that it will be either Roosevelt or his man.

Now be it known that the allies are stronger against the President than they are against his secretary. While they talk of flinging a third term bomb into the Taft ranks to break them it is a pretty safe wager that the field workers will get positive stop orders on any such program before they go very far, Senator James H. Emery of Indiana, who is credited with being the man who has been directing the Taft opposition from behind a hedge, arrived today to openly direct affairs, and something straightforward is expected in place of the generalities that are so freely circulated.

DELEGATES

TO CONGRESSIONAL CONVENTION THURSDAY WERE APPRECIATIVE OF HOSPITALITY.

Congressman Ashbrook's Speech of Acceptance Was Commended by All Who Heard It.

The delegates to the Seventeenth district Democratic Congressional convention, which renominated Congressman William A. Ashbrook of Licking county, Thursday, were highly complimentary in their expressions of appreciation of Newark and the reception tendered them by Congressman Ashbrook and Licking county.

A number of the delegates remained in the city Thursday night, some spent the evening at Buckeye Lake park, and others returned to their homes on the evening trains.

All pronounced the convention a model of harmony and success. The crowd was well taken care of by the street railway company, special cars being run to accommodate the delegates and other visitors.

The accommodations at the Casino were first class, thanks to Col. Cliff Rosebrough and Manager Hayes. The stage was decorated with big flags and the names of the Democratic candidates, while above it hung an attractive streamer bearing the picture of an American coin, with the motto, "In God We Trust," for the restoration of which Congressman Ashbrook bears the honor.

The decorations and arrangements of the speakers' table and the press table, were well cared for by Col. Rosebrough, whose ability along these lines is well known.

Congressman Ashbrook remained in the city as the guest of friends over night, returning to his home in Johnstown, Friday morning.

A feature of the convention was Mr. Ashbrook's speech of acceptance of the nomination. He was cheered repeatedly by the entire convention and his speech was well chosen. He extended his thanks to the loyal Democrats of the district for the honors conferred upon him, and stated that he appreciated the demonstration of Thursday more than that at New Philadelphia two years ago, for he took it as an approval of his record in congress. He pledged his best support to the entire ticket and to the best interests of the people to be represented by him.

FORMERLY WEALTHY

AT ONE TIME PRESIDENT OF THE CHICAGO AND NORTHWEST- ERN RAILROAD.

Now Penniless and Seeks Admission to Poorhouse—Children Rich but Refuse Assistance.

Milwaukee, Wis., June 5.—C. J. L. Meyer, first president of the Chicago and Northwestern railroad, former mayor of Fond du Lac, once in business with the late Senator Sawyer of Oshkosh, owner of a big sash, door, blind and wholesale lumber business, and worth at one time $1,000,000, came yesterday to Gustav Freelson of the Associated Charities and applied for admission to the Milwaukee county poor house.

He has two daughters both of them married to wealthy men, but neither of them replies to his requests for aid. By his removal to Chicago he has forfeited his right to admission to the Milwaukee county house, and was greatly surprised when told of this fact by Mr. Freelson.

Mr. Freelson will write letters to the two wealthy sons-in-law to remind them of their duty toward the old gentleman.

WILL SEEK BIG GAME

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT AND SON KERMIT PREPARING FOR A TRIP TO AFRICA.

Expects to Write Books and Magazine Articles Based on Explorations Which They Will Make.

Washington June 5.—Within a few weeks after March 4, 1909 Mr. Roosevelt proposes to start for British East Africa for a hunting trip of a year or more after big game. He will be accompanied by his second son Kermit. This statement is said to be authoritative. A report that he might go to the Philippines was explicitly denied today by Secretary Loeb.

The President will enter British East Africa at Bombosa. He will travel north and south as the seasons make desirable. He has been engaged for weeks with great enthusiasm on preparing for the trip. He will buy two elephant guns for himself and his son, and will go with a first class hunting arsenal.

He also will make a careful study of the fauna of Africa and will write some magazine articles and one or more books on his explorations.

INVESTIGATION COMMITTEE.

Columbus, June 5.—By direction of Governor Harris, H. H. McFadden, of Steubenville, R. H. Platt of Columbus, J. S. Neave of Cincinnati, and R. C. Burton of Zanesville, composing a committee of the State Board of Charities will assemble with Secretary Sherer of the board at the Massillon State Hospital for the Insane, ready to enter next Tuesday upon the investigation of the death of John Adams.

UNKNOWN DEFEATED GEORGIAN

Prohibition and Antagonism of Watson Populists Responsible---Hoke Smith Overthrown---All of Eleven Democratic Congressmen Returned.

Atlanta, June 5.—Returns from the state Democratic primaries indicate the defeat of Governor Hoke Smith for a second term by Joseph M. Brown, whom Smith dismissed from the office of railroad commissioner. The returns place Brown's majority over Smith at 15,000.

Governor Smith has been in office hardly a year, having been elected 12 months before he was inaugurated and has a year of his term yet to serve.

Governor Smith was weakened by the attitude of Thos. Watson, the Populist leader. Two years ago Watson supported Smith, but this year fought him bitterly, although Brown represented the coterie of politicians whom Watson has always opposed. Watson's defection and antagonism of the Farmers' Union, angered by the fall in price of cotton, cost Smith heavily in the country districts. Prohibition threw Atlanta, Savannah,

Hoke Smith

He was overwhelmingly elected two years ago on a platform calling for strict railroad regulation and the disfranchisement of the negro. He has largely fulfilled his platform and the revolt against him is inexplicable.

Much of the anti-Smith feeling was generated by the state prohibition law which he signed, and the panic which threw many men out of employment was used to capture the labor vote for Brown. Governor Smith was opposed by 11 the coterie of politicians who had long dominated the state and whom he overthrew two years ago.

The defeat of governor Smith will be considered a back eye for prohibition and disfranchisement, and will also be used as an argument for less drastic regulation of corporations.

LAWSON CLAIMS TAFT WILL RECEIVE DOUBLE CROSS

Boston, June 5.—The Republican national convention will double cross Taft and be stampeded for Roosevelt, says Thomas W. Lawson. The latter has been a consistent third term, and today he publishes a statement reiterating his views. According to Lawson, the President's friends have been canvassing the country for three months working up Roosevelt sentiment that will sweep everything at Chicago. The third term movement, he declares, has been developed entirely without the knowledge of the President.

WILL BE TAFT OR ROOSEVELT, SAYS CHAIRMAN SHERMAN

Albany, N. Y., June 5.—"It will be Taft on the first ballot, or Roosevelt on the third, for the presidential nomination, with the probability that either Fairbanks or Dooliver will be named for vice president. I do not look for the nomination of a New York man for either place unless it is Roosevelt."

This prophecy as to the final judgment of the Republican national convention was registered by Chairman James S. Sherman of the Republican congressional committee.

"Either Taft or Roosevelt. No others, I believe need be seriously considered."

"But Taft's managers are all claiming his nomination on the first ballot."

"Well, he may be named on the first ballot, but if he is not he will not be nominated at all. Then, look out for Roosevelt, who will, in my judgment, be renominated if a third ballot is taken."

"A few more such statements as he made at Philadelphia, declining the vice presidency to which he was nominated in 1900, will make him not only a possibility, but a probability for the presidency again. You know he kept avowing that he would not be President McKinley's running mate, but he was, and then he became President."

"You believe the President, to be perfectly sincere, is repeatedly disclaiming any desire to run again?"

"I do, but suppose the convention is unable to agree upon a candidate, or rather suppose Taft fails of nomination on the first ballot, then, I repeat, watch for Roosevelt."

"There are few who doubt that he is the most popular Republican in our country, or that he is the cleverest politician the nation has produced in I don't know how many years. He will try to land Taft. There is no question about that but the convention may insist upon his becoming the candidate again."

NEGRO KILLS MINE BOSS.

Steubenville, O., June 5.—Albert Thorpe, mine boss at Jefferson Mine No. 2, Piney Fork, was killed this morning by Harry Richards, a negro. Thorpe discharged Richards and the latter struck Thorpe twice over the head with a club when he turned away. The negro escaped to the woods and deputy sheriffs are on his trail.

WILL BE NO STRIKE.

Cleveland, O., June 5.—When the miners and operators from the Western Ohio district resumed their conference today, it was stated that an agreement would be reached by Saturday night on the scale and both sides insisted there was no possibility of a strike.

PASSENGER TRAIN DITCHED.

Millington, N. J., June 5.—The Bernardsville express on the Lackawanna railroad carrying many New York commuters was ditched this morning west of here. Spreading rails are blamed. Five persons sustained injuries and it is believed that one will die.

THE FIGHT IS ON AT CHICAGO OVER CONTESTED SEATS

Chicago, June 5.—The Republican national committee went into session today to begin the work of passing on the 229 contested convention seats. It is admitted that the action of the committee will have a big influence in deciding the presidential contest, as the delegates favored by the national committee will be placed on the temporary convention roll. The decision of the national committee will also act as a precedent to the convention committee on credentials, which will have little time to take up the contests and means much to both factions. Each contest will be taken up in regular order, the committee today beginning with Alabama, where there is a contest in every district, and in the delegation at large between Taft and anti-Taft delegates, both claiming to be regular.

An attempt was made to exclude Frank B. Hitchcock, Taft's manager, who held a proxy from New Mexico, as well as two other Taft men who held proxies. This attempt was voted down and was first blood for Taft. Attorney F. C. Bryan of Washington, representing the anti-Taft men, made a bitter attack on the alleged interference of the President and Hitchcock in Alabama politics as soon as this contest was taken up.

When the ruling of the national committee in seating Hitchcock became generally known, the anti-Taft politicians held indignation meetings around the Coliseum and Auditorium Annex. They characterized the action of the committee as gang rule, and Major Bryan, attorney for the contestants, charged that he could not see how southern contestants could get a fair hearing with the committee constituted as at present.

DIPLOMATIC RELATIONS

BETWEEN SERBIA AND MONTE- NEGRO ARE SEVERED AND WAR MAY RESULT.

Trial of Conspirators Develops That Prince George of Serbia Was Prime Mover in Outrages.

Belgrade, June 5.—Diplomatic relations were today broken off between Serbia and Montenegro by the recall of the Serbian minister at Cetinje, and the two nations are now on the verge of war. The Serbian minister asked for his recall as he felt that it was not safe for him to stay in Cetinje as a result of the disclosures made at the trial of 32 conspirators yesterday at which witnesses testified that Crown Prince George of Serbia was the prime mover in the recent bomb outrages in Cetinje. This disclosure inflamed the people of Montenegro and the Serbian minister was forced to hide in his home under a heavy guard.

THREE KILLED MANY INJURED

Joliet, Ill., June 5.—Walter Peel, of Chicago, W. W. Volsfeld, of Aurora, Ill., passengers, and Cyrus Whittington, of Plainfield, Ill., motorman, were killed, and Isaac Shaw and Mrs. Wm. Wilmer Rare are dying, and 20 other passengers were injured when a freight train hit the engine of a Joliet and Southern interurban car at a crossing near here.

TRUELSON'S CONFESSION EXPLODED

Mae O'Reilly Found Alive and Well in Saratoga

NEVER ON GUNNESS FARM

Sheriff Will be Bucked by Com- missioner in His Effort to Solve the Mystery.

Saratoga, N. Y., June 5.—Mae O'Reilly, who, according to Julius G. Truelson, Jr., in a "confession" to the Texas authorities, was murdered on the Gunness farm at Laporte, Ind., is in this village alive and well. Daniel F. Elch, a member of the family with whom she is stopping, says she has been employed in New York City the past winter.

"Miss O'Reilly has had no correspondence with Truelson," Welch declared, "since the time when he was sent to Elmira. After her marriage with him in 1905, she went to work, and has heard nothing of him since then. She knows nothing of his story, except that part of it which he refers to his marriage with her. She declares further that she has never been in Laporte, Ind. In July, 1907, when Truelson alleged in his 'confession' that he and Mrs. Gunness killed her, she was at Rochester, she explained.

The local police consider that their theory that Truelson is mentally unbalanced is materially strengthened by the discovery of Mae O'Reilly here. Their investigation, they say, however, shows that Truelson came to this village in August, 1905, meeting Mae O'Reilly here and afterward marrying her in Albany. Their further information regarding him, they say, is as follows:

Soon after his marriage Truelson was brought back to this village, and in November, 1905, was sentenced to the Elmira Reformatory, which he left on December 20, 1906. On May 4 of this year Police Commissioner King, of this village, received a letter written from Vernon, Texas, signed "John Taylor," asking for information of Mae O'Reilly. The penmanship in this letter and that of Truelson on some letters in the commissioner's possession were found to be identical. "Taylor" said in his letter that he had information that would be of benefit to the O'Reilly woman.

Laporte, June 5.—The county commissioners last night announced that they would stand by Sheriff Smutzer in his determination to probe the Belle Gunness mystery to the bottom and would furnish such money as may be necessary to probe all clues.

The chief of police is in receipt of a letter from Antwerp, Belgium, written by N. Goranson, who makes inquiry regarding his brother, Lars Goranson, who had $50,000, and who vanished after last letter from St. Louis, and he now fears he may have been one of Mrs. Gunness's victims.

DISTURBANCE CONTINUES

IN PARIS OVER ATTEMPTED AS- SASSINATION OF MAJOR ALFRED DREYFUS.

Demonstrations Are Made by Students and Police Take Hand Making More Than 500 Arrests.

Paris, June 5.—Disturbances following the attempted assassination of Major Dreyfus in the Pantheon yesterday by Louis Antheime Gegeri, continued through the night and culminated today in a demonstration against the government by a group of students in the Rue Serres. The police charged the students after a clash in which many arrests were made. The students were dispersed, singing the Marseillaise, as they fled. More than 500 arrests have been made. Major Dreyfus was resting quietly today. Dreyfus refuses to believe that the shooting was the result of a plot. Gegeri is still in jail.

A CHARGERS' SCHOOL

Where Horses Are to Be Trained In Cavalry Tactics.

TEST OF THREE-YEAR-OLDS.

Best Trainers Will Be Employed at Remount Station to Be Established at Fort Reno, Okla., to Break In Steeds For United States Army—No Rough Handling Allowed.

A kindergarten school for army horses, a general training post for the cavalry service, is an experiment to be tried out by the United States government. Herds of three-year-old horses gathered from all parts of the land, unbroken to bridle, saddle or harness, are to be shipped to old Fort Reno and given lessons in "what to do." This is the order of J. B. Aleshure, quartermaster general of the United States army.

Instead of a general military post, picturesque old Fort Reno is to be made a "remount station," a place where new mounts will be provided for cavalrymen, says an El Reno correspondent of the Cincinnati Enquirer. It is proposed to turn out more than 1,000 head of horses and mules each year ready for the military. The cavalrymen who have been stationed at the fort have gone to other posts, and just as soon as stables can be built the horse school will open. By July 1 the three-year-olds are expected to be on the reservation, and the training will begin. England and France have remount stations, but Uncle Sam has never attempted them before. If the one at Fort Reno proves a success it is probable that all horses and mules in the United States will hereafter go through their course in school before graduating into regular army life.

"A horse usually lasts about seven years in the service," said Captain Letcher Hardeman, who is at Fort Reno arranging for the opening of the school. "A mule is good for ten years. The contractors who have furnished the army horses have been buying them between the ages of four and eight years. Our experiment will be with three-year-olds.

"There'll be no broncho busters here. We don't care for any man who would mount a three-year-old, sock a pair of rowels into its side and fight it until it's broken in spirit and broken in heart. That kind of breaking may do on the plains, but it won't do for the United States army. A good cavalry horse must have a cavalrman's spirit. Nor will the cavalrmen themselves do the breaking. This work will be in the hands of civilians, under the supervision of army officers.

"The best trainers we can find will be employed. After the horses have been broken cavalrmen will teach them the game of war. No animal is to be roughly handled. Kind treatment goes a long way with a horse in cultivating a good disposition.

"We believe there is economy in a remount station. Not only will we get a better, more desirable lot of horses, but by taking them as three-year-olds we will get from one to five years' more service from them than when we took them four to eight years old. They may be bought cheaper too. A rebellious, unwilling horse can almost disrupt a cavalry movement, and the sooner it has 'I. C.'—inspected, condemned—branded on its side the better off that troop of cavalrys is."

Captain Hardeman says that not a great many horses are condemned for viciousness, but occasionally one entirely unfit for use is got rid of.

About sixty men will be employed at the Fort Reno station, and they expect to break in 800 or 900 head of horses and from 300 to 400 head of mules each year. The old barracks at Fort Reno have practically been abandoned for months. The fort is on a reservation over which bands of Cheyenne and Arapahoe Indians still rove, but they commit no depredations. The Darlington agency is just a few miles distant, and Lo is careful that he does nothing which might prevent him from drawing his quarterly pay. He remembers, too, the Indian police, mounted on fast ponies, who feel the importance of their blue uniforms and brass buttons.

Captain Hardeman recently finished checking up the supplies which have been stored in the old fort and has shipped them away to other depots. Only a few caretakers are now at the post, and their chief duty lies in wandering about the deserted barracks, waiting for the new stables to be built and the horses to come. Lively times are expected then.

Scent in Ribbon Bows.

Scented ribbon bows to be worn at night are the newest things in Paris. Between two layers of ribbon is placed a sandwiching of scented wadding. The hair is confined loosely with the ribbon, which not only perfumes the hair, but brings pleasant dreams to the wearer, say sentimental maids. The high wired lace stock is made a holder of sachet powder. The stock has a rim of velvet. Between this and the lace there is an interlining of chiffon, and within this is the perfumed dust.

Poisonous Gas For Burglars.

A chemical firm in the small town of Aalen, in Germany, has perfected and patented an invention that threatens burglars with instant death after they succeed in opening a safe vault door either by skeleton key or with the aid of compressed air, nitroglycerin and other burglars' paraphernalia. The moment an outsider opens the door or bores through it poisonous gases are released, destroying the invader and leaving him dead on the floor.

The Arcade Realty Co. needs our store in the work of building an Arcade, which will be the greatest public improvement undertaken in Newark for many years—but—their instructions to us are imperative—we must move immediately. Their work, which includes the entire remodeling of the store now occupied by us, cannot be delayed and we must vacate. It would be a superhuman task to remove our immense stock into temporary quarters. Therefore, before occupying them we must dispose of our entire stock. To do this, we have cut prices on every line—piled bargains on every table—and included in the sale everything in the store. Nothing held back—nothing put aside as too good for the sale—EVERYTHING GOES! We know that we possess the confidence of the public. They know that when we announce a sale of this magnitude that we mean exactly what we say. Prices like ours will certainly throng the store from the day the sale begins. Don't make the mistake of waiting too long—this will be a short sale—it must be—and the early buyer gets the bargains. COME EARLY—save money. Street Improvements.

Frank Kinney and son have commenced making the cement curbing on Clinton street preparatory to paving that thoroughfare. The sewer will be constructed before the pavement is laid and work will begin on it in a few days.

Ten Days' Tent Meeting.

The Pentecostal church of the Nazarene will hold a 10 days' tent meeting at the corner of Sixth street, between Church and Main, commencing June 12. The meeting will be in charge of Rev. A. R. Welsh, of the First church, Columbus, assisted by other workers. All are welcome.

Officer Bitten by Dog.

Officer Andrews was bitten by a dog in the B. & O. yards last night while arresting a drunken foreigner that was lying across the railroad tracks. The officer shot and killed the dog and sent the drunk in the patrol to the city prison. He was tried this morning and given the usual fine.

Successful Applicants.

Among the successful applicants for certificates who were examined by the state pharmaceutical board on the 12th, 13th and 14th of last month, and whose names have just been announced, appear the names of Raymond A. Belt and Stacy C. Conrad, of Newark, and Charles F. Kuppinger of Mansfield. Mr. Belt is a well known clerk in Hall's drug store, while Mr. Conrad is with Crayon & Co. Mr. Kuppinger is a son of George Kuppinger, a city mail carrier.

If any of the members of Co. G. O. N. G., organized in 1876 have a photograph taken about the following year and make the same known to the Advocate it will be greatly appreciated.

CANDIDATES WAKE UP

Cannon and Fairbanks Have Ears to Ground.

SOME RECENT DEVELOPMENTS

Former Stand Patters Now Favor Tariff Revision—A Concession to Popular Opinion—Fail to State if Revision Should Be Up or Down.

Evidently there will be no openly stand pat candidate for the Republican nomination for president. It seems now to be a neck and neck race between the former stand patters, Cannon and Fairbanks, to see which will make the largest bid for tariff reform support without burning behind them bridges that afford connection with the heavily protected "interests." Speaker Cannon, through the Illinois platform, declared for revision after March 4, 1909. On April 1 the vice president, through a letter read at the Indiana convention, came out for revision immediately after the election in November. Now the speaker by a resolution introduced in the house of representatives on April 2 shakes a big stick at one of the conspicuous tariff beneficiaries, the paper trust.

The speaker's resolution requests information from the attorney general and the department of commerce and labor with reference to criminal prosecution of the paper trust and investigation into its affairs. This action would seem to be a flank movement to avoid a direct issue at this time on the removal of the tariff on paper and wood pulp, as recommended by the president and overwhelmingly demanded by public opinion and no doubt favored by a majority of congressmen. Mr. Cannon is reported to have expressed the opinion that the high price of paper may be due to illegal combination on the part of the trust and not caused by the tariff at all. He would have the trust prosecuted, enjoined, dissolved, etc.

Far be it from us to shield the paper trust from any of these dreadful proceedings, but the speaker's move illustrates well the usual attitude of the politicians on issues of this kind. They give to manufacturers or allow them to retain a tariff wall, which is in itself a strong temptation to combination and monopoly and a protection against possible disturbance in the enjoyment of monopoly privileges. This is their contribution to the "interests." But they are equally generous with the people. For their benefit rigorous laws are passed, making criminal offenses of the very things which the tariff has encouraged and protected. Of course such laws are not enforced, and if perchance the big stick is brandished too close to a trust it "disappears," to appear again in a form less vulnerable to legal attack. But the trust never relinquishes its monopoly or efforts to raise the price to reimburse itself for the trouble of prosecution or the payment of fines.

If the high price of paper is not caused by the tariff, the speaker must yet acknowledge that it could do no harm to remove the duty, even though it did no good. He and other protectors of the "interests" might be driven to try this experiment if the people would show they are "next" to the politicians' game.

All the Republican candidates except Senator La Follette have forgotten to state whether they would revise the tariff up or down. The people should inquire into this, for it is a matter of some trifling importance whether they are to be robbed more or less. Suspicion on this point is aroused by the fact that all of the would-be revisers insist on a new lease of official power before making any attempt to relieve their constituents of the burdens now oppressing them. If their action were to be in the general interest of the people, why not give the people a taste of the good things before election? This might whet the public appetite for more of the same sort next year. It would seem that general promises of fine things to be done "after election" or "next year" would by this time have lost their seductive power for American ears.

JESSE F. ORTON.

STAND PATTERS' TRICK.

Tariff Commission a Scheme to Delay Revision.

It is congress and congress only, aided by the president, that has power to revise the tariff. It should not and cannot, as I believe, shift its work to any commission. A congress that wants the tariff revised downward will proceed at once to lower duties. A congress that is controlled by stand patters and tariff beneficiaries and that is yet compelled to do something to quiet the people will be likely to appoint a commission to make excursions to foreign countries, to hold hearings and finally to make long winded and meaningless reports. While this commission will be slowly prosecuting its investigation the tariff trusts will continue to plunder the helpless consumers and will raise a campaign fund that will almost insure the re-election of stand patters and the defeat of revisionists. Instead of this programme of delay I would have a president who would call an extra session of congress to revise the tariff immediately and radically.—Ex-Governor William L. Douglas.

The "Friends" Are There Now.

The advocates of high protection insist that the tariff must be revised by "its friends." It would seem that the present congress contains as many friends of the tariff as are likely to be assembled there in the near future. Why not revise it now?

When Girls Dress Up

They want a pretty pair of shoes. Our shoes for girls and young women this year are the handsomest we've ever handled. They've style, grace and beauty. The terms are especially handsome. Oxfords and pumps are the proper thing. Do you want your daughter to look as nice as other girls?

Successor to SMITH BROS.

I hope to be able to hold all of Smith Bros.' trade and add to it all the old trade I had when on West Main street four years ago. Mr. Milton Smith will remain in the store for a short time and all the old clerks will stay, so you will be treated just as you were formerly.

I bought this store to keep just as long as I am able to navigate and eventually hand it down to my boy. It is too good a business to let it drop clear out of the family after so many years of hard work on the part of the boy's grandfather and uncle in building it up.

To all my old customers and those who have traded with Smith Bros.—I most cordially solicit your patronage.

To those who still owe me for goods gotten four or five years ago (I am glad to be able to say there are but few) I want to say that your cash is just as acceptable as that of your neighbor, and we will be glad to serve you as best we can but there will be NO MORE BAD accounts run at this store. I pay cash for all my goods and must have my money in a reasonable time.

RESOLUTIONS

Adopted at the Democratic Congressional Convention of the 17th District June
4, 1908.

(The resolutions adopted at the Democratic Congressional convention were not printed fully in Thursday's Advocate. The complete resolutions as adopted are as follows:)

We, the delegates of the Seventeenth Ohio Congressional district in convention assembled, do hereby adopt the following resolutions, as expression of the sentiment of this convention:

Resolved, first, That we hereby renew our allegiance to the grand principles of the Democratic party, as enunciated in the immortal Declaration of Independence of this country,
by Thomas Jefferson; and as carried out by Andrew Jackson and the other grand leaders of that party, and we hereby pledge ourselves and dedicate ourselves anew to those principles which are the principles of true Americanism, and the only salvation of the country.

Resolved, second: That we point with pride to the glorious history and progress of our country under sixty years of Democratic administration, prior to the advent of the Republican party. That we point to the fact that every State in the Union was carved out of territory acquired under Democratic Administrations; that the flag of our country floated on every ocean
and in every harbor over our merchant marine, under Democratic administration; that prosperity dwelt in the land and peace within its borders;
that every citizen was free and enjoyed all the rights of life and liberty
under Democratic administration;
and that no bloated monopolists and no army of tramps existed under Democratic administration.

Resolved, third: That after and under nearly fifty years of almost uninterrupted Republican administration,
the following situation stares us in the face: We are now, under a Republican high tariff administration, suffering the greatest panic and the hardest times, that this country has ever known, with over half a million
freight cars standing idle on the side tracks; with thousands of manufacturing establishments shut down, and hundreds of thousands of American working men out of employment, under a two hundred per cent. protective tariff, and their wives and children crying for bread. That the American flag floats over provinces in the Philippines that have been deprived of their natural rights and liberties; and the same flag, under the treaty with the Philippines, protects polygamy and slavery. That numerous trusts, that have grown up under the fostering influence of an excessive tariff, are monopolizing business, crushing out competition, creating a privileged class of millionaire monopolists, and crushing out the life
and independence of the people.

Resolved, fourth: That we demand an immediate and honest revision of the tariff in the interests of the people of this country who pay the tariff,
so as to give capital invested in manufacturing all the protection to which it is entitled to and so as to give labor all the protection that it needs. We demand the immediate passage of laws to abolish all illegal and unjust monopolies and to properly regulate, in the interests of justice and the people generally, large combinations of capital. We demand that the natives of the Philippine Islands be restored to their natural rights, as soon as consistent with their safety and the dignity of the United States. We demand the repeal of the Sherman Anti-Trust Law,

so far as it applies to Labor Organizations. We demand the restriction of the use of the Law of Injunction to its legitimate functions to prevent irreparable damage. But we protest against its use to unjustly oppress labor and deprive it of its rights.

Resolved, fifth: That we rejoice in the glorious prospects of Democratic victory next November, state and national, and that we hereby unanimously endorse, in compliance with the endorsement of the last Democratic State convention and the unanimous sentiment of the Democracy of the Union, that honest man,
that fearless patriot, that distinguished statesman and that true Democrat, William Jennings Bryan, as our candidate for president, at the next National Democratic convention;
and we hereby pledge ourselves to use all honest and honorable efforts to elect him next November, and we instruct our delegates elected today to the Democratic National Convention,
to vote for William Jennings Bryan,
first, last and always.

Resolved, sixth: That we congratulate the Democracy of the State of Ohio upon the nomination of that splendid man and great statesman,
Judge Judson Harmon, as our candidate for governor, and we endorse him
and the whole Democratic State ticket,
and platform and predict the election of the entire Democratic State ticket and pledge our best and most loyal service to it to that end.

Resolved, seventh: That we enthusiastically endorse our brilliant young congressman, Hon. W. A. Ashbrook, for a second term in congress; that we point with pride to the splendid record that he has made in his first term in behalf of his party, the gallant veterans of the Civil War, and all his constituents. We pledge our hearty and unanimous support to him; and predict his re-election to a second term, as a fitting recognition of the valuable services of one of the best Congressmen that this district has ever had.

With this declaration of principles,
we pledge ourselves that the Democracy of this district, standing shoulder
to shoulder and heart beating to heart,
will move forward, in one solid phalanx
to a glorious victory next November and to the re-establishment of Democratic administration throughout the State and Nation.

Our giant tariff pet
It Controls Congress and Fools
the People.
TRICKY REPORTS MISLEAD.
Tariff Legislation Blocked by the Steel
Trust—Conceals Profits and Export
Prices by Juggling Figures—Greed
Overreaches Itself.
That our $1,000,000,000 infant steel
trust has for years held the keys to
the tariff situation at Washington is a
fact known to all who are at all familiar with subsurface conditions at our national capital.
Not only has this government pet
gained and held control of the important committees of congress and smothered
all tariff bills and suppressed discussion of the tariff, but it has very
foolishly, as it now finds, blocked the passage of bills to liberalize our tariff
drawback laws.
In 1903, when Congressman Lov-
ing's very sensible bill to simplify and
liberalize our drawback laws was in
the ways and means committee, it was
by order of the steel trust quietly put
to sleep. The order was given by James Gayley, first vice president of the steel trust. The Boston Herald of July 28, 1907, contained ten columns
of letters and facts on this subject.
It was known in 1903 that the steel
trust after close figuring estimated
that the drawback bill if passed would
curtail the trust's profits by $400,000,
or one-third of 1 per cent. This loss
the steel trust would not permit, although it did not deny that the bill
would mean millions of dollars to our exporting manufacturers and would
especially enable them to keep busy
making goods for foreigners when, as
at present, the home demand for goods
was slack.
The steel trust then, as since, had
full control over congress and tariff
legislation. It used its power mercilessly and to the limit. That is one reason why the manufacturers of implements, tools, wagons, carriages, automobiles, etc., are now demanding
tariff reduction and are carrying disks
for this tariff dictator. That is one reason why the tariff situation at Washington is getting beyond the control of the steel trust. That is one reason why the tariff will almost surely be revised in 1909 if not before.
When too late this greedy corporation realizes that by grasping for too much
it may lose all.
Our giant tariff pet has other iniquities to answer for. Two of these relate to false and misleading statements in its reports, made to conceal the real rate of tariff profits and to deceive the people as to the difference between its prices for goods sold abroad
and at home.
The recently issued report of the steel trust tells us that the gross sales
and earnings for the year ending Dec.
31, 1907, were $757,614,767 and that the net earnings, after deducting $35, 000,000 for maintenance and repairs,
were $100,964,674. Apparently, then,
this trust sold its products at a profit
of only 27 per cent on their cost price.
This rate of profit does not look large to us when we consider how heavily we tax ourselves to support
this price of paupers.
But in reality the rate of profit was about twice 27 per cent. In another part of the report we are informed that "gross sales and earnings" include "sales made between the subsidiary companies" as well as those to the outside world. This is ridiculous, of course, and is done for the purpose
of disguising tariff profits.
Just what were the actual "gross sales" to the public the report now-where tells us. It does, however, tell us that the total tons of "rolled and other finished products for sale" were 10,376,742. We know the quoted prices for nearly all of these products, and we know that the average price was not, as the figures indicate, over $70 per ton. We know that it was not $60 or even $50 per ton. It probably did not exceed $40 a ton, or about $144,000,000. Adding $46,000,000—a liberal estimate—for all other possible

sales and earnings—from its railroads,
sales of cement, spelter, etc.—we have $190,000,000 as the total amount of the gross sales to the public.
Deducting the net profits, we have less than $300,000,000 as the total cost of the products sold. The actual rate of profit, then, we are proud to say,
was 54 per cent on the cost price of the products sold.
But this juggle and jumble of gross sales is crude when compared with the deftness with which the difference between export and domestic prices is concealed from most people by the following statement:
"The average mill price per ton received for all exported materials was only 7 1/2 per cent less than the average price received for all domestic shipments."
This apparently honest and frank confession that goods for export are sold only 7 1/2 per cent below the domestic price is undoubtedly the most beautiful piece of deception in the whole steel trust report. Overlooking the probable juggles in the words "average" and "mill price" here are the essential facts which the words of this report were intended to conceal:
The exports consist mainly of highly finished products, such as barbed and other wire, wire nails, tin plate, etc.
The domestic sales consist mainly of heavy products, such as steel rails,
structural shapes, merchant steel, tubing and pipe, blooms, plates, etc. The average price in the home market of the class of goods exported is perhaps $47.
The average price of all goods sold in the home market is about $40 per ton. If, then, the exported goods were sold at 7 1/2 per cent less than $40 per ton, they were sold for $37, or $30 per ton below the domestic price for the same class of goods.
This would make the difference between export and home prices nearly 30 per cent instead of "only 7 1/2 per cent." It is reasonably certain that the average difference was not less than 15 or 20 per cent, even in 1907,
when, as the report admits, foreign prices were nearer to domestic prices
than at any time since the steel trust was formed.
The present (1908) difference between export and domestic prices of steel is probably much more than 30 per cent.
This is known that in January the United States Steel Products Export company sold for export 109,000 tons
of sheet bars at $1 shillings per ton, delivered in Wales. Deducting $8.50 for freight, the Pittsburgh price for these exported goods was $16 against $29, the home price. In this instance the domestic price was 80 per cent
above the export price.
The steel trust exported 1,014,082
tons of steel goods in 1907 and sold 3,362,660 tons in domestic markets. If the tariff profits were $10 a ton, they amounted to $33,600,000 in 1907. This is about the average yearly tribute that we pay to the greatest and most powerful corporation on earth. At this price it can well afford to perform figure juggling stunts and sleight of hand tricks in its reports.

OUR GIANT TARIFF PET

It Controls Congress and Fools
the People.

TRICKY REPORTS MISLEAD.

Tariff Legislation Blocked by the Steel
Trust—Conceals Profits and Export
Prices by Juggling Figures—Greed
Overreaches Itself.

That our $1,000,000,000 infant steel
trust has for years held the keys to
the tariff situation at Washington is a
fact known to all who are at all familiar with subsurface conditions at our
national capital.

Not only has this government pet
gained and held control of the important committees of congress and smothered
all tariff bills and suppressed discussion of the tariff, but it has very
foolishly, as it now finds, blocked the
passage of bills to liberalize our tariff
drawback laws.

In 1903, when Congressman Lov-
ing's very sensible bill to simplify and
liberalize our drawback laws was in
the ways and means committee, it was
by order of the steel trust quietly put
to sleep. The order was given by James Gayley, first vice president of
the steel trust. The Boston Herald of
July 28, 1907, contained ten columns
of letters and facts on this subject.

It was known in 1903 that the steel
trust after close figuring estimated
that the drawback bill if passed would
curtail the trust's profits by $400,000,
or one-third of 1 per cent. This loss
the steel trust would not permit, although it did not deny that the bill
would mean millions of dollars to our
exporting manufacturers and would
especially enable them to keep busy
making goods for foreigners when, as
at present, the home demand for goods
was slack.

The steel trust then, as since, had
full control over congress and tariff
legislation. It used its power mercilessly and to the limit. That is one
reason why the manufacturers of implements, tools, wagons, carriages, automobiles, etc., are now demanding
tariff reduction and are carrying disks
for this tariff dictator. That is one reason why the tariff situation at Washington is getting beyond the control of the steel trust. That is one
reason why the tariff will almost surely be revised in 1909 if not before.

THE DULUTH GAS FRAUD.

The Results of the Economies and Enterprise of a Private Company Claimed by the Municipal Management of the Gas Plant of Duluth, Minn.

To those unfamiliar with the facts
the reports assiduously circulated about the gas department of Duluth would give the impression that the profits reported are the result of municipal operation. This is, however,
far from the truth, for in 1904 the city
shut down the generating plant which
it had purchased only six years before,
and since that date it has been merely a distributor of the gas made by a private company.

During the five complete years (1899-1903) that the city made its own gas
the average cost per thousand feet was $1.20 and the receipts $1.17. In these cost figures there is no allowance for depreciation, lost taxes, accidents, legal services, etc. A very moderate allowance for these would greatly increase the loss per thousand, and if private enterprise had not come to its relief the gas plant would have ultimately proved a grievous burden, although so far as possible it had been removed from political influences.

The reductions in price of gas made by the city while it was operating the plant were due largely to the great increase in demand resulting from the rapid increase in the use of gas for fuel purposes as well as to improvements in the art of manufacture, but in no case were they warranted, for the real cost was always in excess of the net price.

The reduction in price since the city abandoned the manufacture of gas is due to the private enterprise of the coking plant which supplies gas as a byproduct to the city and which has spent many thousands of dollars in exploiting the gas to increase its sales.
As a gas expert who has no interest in this company writes:
"Of course this is very fine for the citizens of Duluth, but it is not municipal ownership, as the city is freed from the two factors which ordinarily are the worst features of municipal plans—to wit, lack of proper handling of the manufacturing end of the business and lack of push in exploiting the commercial side. In short, the city of Duluth simply distributes the gas and collects the bills."

Municipal Electricity a Burden.
In 1903 the village of Hampshire, Ill., installed dynamos and a distributing system at a cost of $5,000. This has just been sold for $3,600. In the ordinance providing for the sale it is set forth that the plant "has become unprofitable to and a burden upon said village."

MOTHER

WHO ABUSED AND NEGLECTED
SON IS GIVEN JAIL SENTENCE OF THIRTY DAYS.

Judge Brister Grants Divorce—Petitions Filed—Ditch Hearing and Real Estate Transfers.

Today in the Juvenile court the case of Miller, charged with abusing and neglecting her son, Frank Cox, who is aged 12 years, and contributing to his delinquency was heard. Mrs. Miller is aged about 45 years and lives on West Main street, not far from the creek bridge. She has been married three times. Her last husband, Miller, is considerably younger than his wife. One of her husbands, instead of resorting to the divorce courts, committed suicide. One of her sons, who was a man grown, committed suicide in Columbus one year ago on account of a love affair. Her youngest son, Frank Cox, tried to kill himself by throwing himself in front of a moving street car on the 28th of May on account of the cruelty of his mother. The boy was sent to the Children's Home by the Probate court. A number of witnesses residing near the home of Mrs. Miller were examined, and the general trend of the testimony sustained the complaint filed against her. The court found Mrs. Miller guilty and sentenced her to 30 days in the county jail. The court also gave her a very earnest and kind talk, telling her that the sentence was not inflicted so much for punishment as it was for her reformation. The captain of the Salvation Army also said that the members of the army would use their best efforts for her reformation.

Common Pleas Court.

In the case of Rose Wilson vs. Abel J. Wilson, et al, a motion to set aside partition on the ground that the division made by the commissioners of the real estate was inequitable. The court overruled the motion. Exceptions were noted. Nash, Smythe & Smythe; Rees.

Wayne Automobile Co. vs. Alice G. Miller, motion to quash summons issued upon the answer and cross petition, bringing into the case one C. H. Davis. The court did not think that Davis is a necessary party in the judgment of the matter. The suit is brought upon a check given in part payment of an automobile. Fulton & Fulton; Miller, Flory & Flory.

Ohio vs. Lee Beatty, Albert Fitzsimmons, Wm. and Joseph Schlage, and James Fitzgerald; indicted for keeping gambling room; plea of not guilty changed to guilty.

B. J. Mattingly vs. Village of Johnstown, et al. A suit to restrain the council of Johnstown from appropriating money to pay expenses of prosecutions of liquor cases in the village. Argued and submitted to court. Smythe & Smythe; Kibler & Montgomery.

Clifford R. Lewis has commenced suit in the Common Pleas court against George M. Green. Plaintiff says he is the owner in fee simple of certain real estate in Granville, and that the defendant claims some interest in the real estate adverse to the plaintiff. He says that in the case of Lydia J. Green vs. Moses Goodrich, the property was sold by consent of the defendant, free from defendant's claim. Defendant claims that the proceedings are invalid as to him for the reason that he was non compos mentis or of insufficient intellect to bind himself by his own acts, or was an imbecile, incapable of transacting business.

Plaintiff claims defendant was not and is not insane, or incapable of transacting business, and that he has no right, title or interest in the real estate. Plaintiff asks that his title to the real estate be quieted as against the defendant. Jones & Jones, attorneys for the plaintiff.

Answer and Cross Petition.

In the case of the Newark Sanitary company vs. R. T. Raggsdale, the defendant, Horace E. Hoyt, has filed an answer and cross petition to the petition of the plaintiff in which he asks that the Licking County Bank and Trust company be made a party to the suit. F. M. Black attorney for defendant.

Demurrer Filed.

In the case of Charles D. Gill vs. Samuel C. Fink and others, the defendant G. A. Clifton demurs to the several causes of action set forth, for the reason that they do not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action. Flory & Flory attorneys for the defendant, G. A. Clifton.

Demurrer Filed.

In the case of Charles D. Gill vs. Samuel C. Fink and others, the defendant demurs to the first, second and third causes of action in the plaintiff's third amended petition. Kibler & Montgomery, attorneys.

Motion Filed.

In the case of Charles D. Gill vs. Samuel C. Fink and others, the defendant, Charles H. Warden, has filed a motion asking that the court strike from plaintiff's third amended petition the third cause of action. He also says that the allegations are superfluous and redundant and are a repetition of the allegations made in the second cause of action. Kibler &

Divorce Granted.

The case of Zanni D. Mills vs. Alice C. Mills, for divorce was tried in the Probate court. The plaintiff was represented by Fulton & Fulton, and the defendant made no defense. The parties were married in 1878 and have been living in the northwestern part of the county. No children have been born of the marriage. The plaintiff alleged that his wife left him about six years ago and that he has remained away from her ever since. A decree was granted the plaintiff.

Brief on Demurrer.

In the case of Charles Gill against Samuel C. Fink and others the defendant Charles H. Warden has filed a brief on demurrer on the grounds that the plaintiff is not entitled to bring suit against the defendants, and that the plaintiff's remedy, if any he has is in the action for contribution and not an action at law. IS THE PAINT TO USE

The time to paint is when your house needs painting, and not six months or a year after you first discover the fact. Every time you postpone for one reason or another this important duty, you lose good money, your buildings begin to decay, and instead of an expense of a few dollars for paint you find it necessary to replace the damaged siding with new.

(By R. U. Sawhill.)
Mansfield, June 5.—Mansfield and Newark both took one of the two games played yesterday afternoon. The Molders had the honor of walking away with the first contest, and they came awfully close to repeating the stunt in the second but we were closer. Both teams put up a faster and cleaner article of ball than they did on the preceding day. The players worked harder. Both contests went the full nine innings. Jewell had another off day at short, having four errors in the first game, but he played in something nearer his usual form in the last game.

Quailley who won the game on the preceding day, again went to the mound and had the Tigers guessing at all times. Both Comstock and Kling were wild. Bucholz was hit harder than Locke in the second game, but he was effective with men on bases, while Mansfield bunched their hits off of Old Joe.

Newark was able to take the long end of the first game on account of the wildness of the Mansfield pitchers while two of the errors chalked up against Jewell were responsible for three runs crossing the plate. The two local twirlers presented seven of the Molders with free transportation and as might be expected the majority of these resulted in runs.

As a team the Tigers played better ball than they did in Tuesday's game, but at the same time they displayed some of the most bone-headed base running ever seen on the local lot. For instance in the seventh inning Kettler was passed as an opener of the inning. Flood hit one to Smith who threw him out at first. Jimmy was only a few feet from second when Gygli caught the ball and for some unaccountable reason lost his head and started back to first. Before he could recover his presence of mind Murray had the ball and a good chance to score a run had been thrown away. In the ninth with Mathay on first Channell hit a fly to center. It was evident from the moment the ball left the bat that Locke would catch the ball but Mathay kept on running and had rounded second when the center fielder caught the ball. In his desperate efforts to get back to first, Mathay started across the diamond just back of the pitcher's mound, but even by taking this short cut Gygli had the ball before he had even got a good start. Plays like that are unexcusable and should be banished from a ball field.

Newark had men on the sacks in every inning excepting the ninth, while only three men faced Quailley in every inning excepting the first and fourth thanks to poor base running resulting in double plays.

Quailley who finished the opening game of the series and was able to get away with it was sent to the mound by Acting Manager Murray, and the former Lima man pitched a strong game. Only seven men were able to reach first in the nine innings, four by reason of singles and three on passes. He had good control in spite of the number of passes, and was effective in the pinches, only one of his free tickets resulting in a score.

Comstock started the game for the locals but after he had allowed two hits two runs, two errors, had hit a batsman, and presented two passes, and with men on second and first with no outs he was derelicted in favor of the Akron recruit, Kling. The latter jumped into the game without sufficient warming up, and was wild. He forced one run across the plate in the second by passing Smith with two outs while he was unable to locate the plate on several too numerous occasions after that. He only allowed three hits in the eight innings that he worked and if he had not been so liberal with his passes and with a little better support,

One or more of the Tigers reached first in all but three innings. Joe grew stronger as the game progressed but the damage had already been done and it failed to do him any good.

Wratten played a swell game at short and the former third baseman looks better in that position than any shortstop who has worked here this season with the exception of Jewell, who has the call on all of them. Kettler also took everything in acceptable style, while Jewell came to and put up his natural game in the short field.

The hitting of Channell was also in evidence. The Crestline lad getting two hits for extra bases, his triple scoring one run in the first, while he later scored on his double. Gygli and Winch were the only other ones able to get more than one safe one.

With two men down in the first and Mathay on second by reason of Murray's error and a steal, Channell tripled and Mathay scored. Channell started the fourth with a double and went to third on an infield out, scoring when Locke threw wild to catch him off the sack. Flood got as far as third in the inning but could not score. A double by Jewell followed by Biery's single and Locke's miff of Mathay's fly, sent two more in the fifth.

With one down in Newark's half of the second Gygli knocked one to Flood that Tim knocked down, but could not recover. A double by Murray and followed by Winters' single were good for two runs. In the sixth Snyder got on when Biery fumbled his grounder and then threw wild to Kettler who covered the sack. A single by Abbott sent him on around and he scored on a slow return of the ball to the infield. Abbott reached third but was out on an attempted squeeze play, Biery getting the ball to the plate ahead of him.

Every man in the Newark line up reached first at some stage of the game and the visitors had 12 men left on bases. They had numerous good opportunities to score but took advantage of enough of them. Snyder was passed in the first and was sacrificed to second. Smith also was passed, Snyder having already gone to third on a wild pitch. Smith and Snyder tried to negotiate a double steal, but Lefty was run down, between third and home. Locke followed with a single and Smith scored. Jewell fumbled Murray's hit in the second and Wratten was hit. Winters singled, scoring Sandy. Wratten was caught at third on Quailley's tap to the pitcher, but passes to Snyder and Smith forced one run across. A single by Gygli in the fifth and two infield outs scored another one. Smith's double and Jewell's wild throw of Locke's grounder, scored this last run for the visitors in the eighth.

A single by Jewell in the first, a sacrifice, a steal of third and Mathay's single were productive of one in the first, while a pass to Channell, a stolen base and a single by Flood, brought our last one across the plate in the fourth.

SECOND GAME.
Mansfield played a better game in the second contest, while Bucholz was unhit in the pinches which accounts for our taking the long end of the affair.

Newark got the men on the bases but were unable to advance them, while whenever one of the Tigers reached first he usually scored. All of our four hits came at the right time while five of the hits made by the visitors were wasted.

The two teams ran up five errors and all three of the misplays made by the visitors were costly, while only one of our two did not result in damage. Biery's error in the sixth allowing Snyder to cross the plate. The game was featured by the effective pitching of Bucholz, who in spite of the fact that he was hit harder than Locke, outpitched Old Joe. Most of the hits made by the Molders came after two were down, and the third man was unable to produce the necessary safety. Bucholz had excellent control, not issuing a pass in the nine innings. He struck out six of the batters, four of them coming with men on bases. A Newark player reached first in every inning except the first and third, but it was then that Muck pitched ball, and only two of them were able to travel the entire distance. The Molders bunched hits off of him in the second, when three consecutive safeties sent two men over the plate, but after that they could do nothing with him.

Joe Locke, the veteran of the Newark, pitched a ball for the Molders this season was not in his best form, although he held the Tigers to four hits they all came at the right time. He was wild, passing five, but none of these figured in the run mak-

BOOSTERS' MEETING WAS AN ENTHUSIASTIC SUCCESS

Condition of Team Thoroughly Explained and Situation Carefully Gone Over ---Rousing Speeches Made

Committees Appointed to Sell Stock and Tickets and Every Effort Will be Made to Secure Team in Newark

The big boosters' meeting held in the mayor's office, Thursday night, showed plainly the trend of opinion as to the baseball situation in Newark, and if the necessary money can be raised, $2,500, the team will stay here and be a winner at that, for every step is being taken to bolster up the weak spots and indications are that the directors will succeed admirably.

Every seat in the spacious room was taken and many were forced to fill the doors two and three deep. It was an enthusiastic gathering and every possible means will be taken to arrange the finances in a satisfactory manner. It did not convene until 8 o'clock owing to the late arrival of President Stasel of the club, and at the opening of the meeting Secretary Hopkins was also absent, being out of the city.

Mr. W. L. Prout was made chairman of the meeting and called for nominations for secretary. Mr. J. M. Maynone was chosen for the position and after Mr. Prout stated the reason for the calling of the meeting he called on President Stasel to explain the exact trouble and what was necessary.

Mr. Stasel spoke of the high class base ball that was played here last year and said that he was disappointed in the showing the team was making so far this present season. He did think, however, that if money was raised so that two or three weak spots on the team could be strengthened, that winning ball could be played by the Molders.

He referred to the fact of the Newark players last year, told why they were sold and mentioned the fact of their misfortune in selecting players so far this season. He arranged the fans for staying away from the games because they had been playing losing ball this season, and said that their assistance was absolutely and immediately necessary if the team was to be retained here. He asked the fans to have patience and the team would soon be in the running with the best in the league.

He spoke at length of Zanesville without base ball and told of the efforts of that city to get back in organized ball after they were out of it for two years. If Zanesville can raise $15,000 to buy a berth in the Central Newark ought to be able to raise $2,500 or $3,000.

Mr. Phil Smythe then took the floor and said that while the people knew that the team was in trouble, they did not know just what the trouble was and asked that the facts be presented to the audience. Secretary Hopkins was not present and until his arrival a little later the facts of the case were not told.

Mr. Maynone then told of his experience in Philadelphia, telling why the Athletics with a winning team could draw 15,000 people to a game while the National with a losing team only got about 600 people to a game. He said the first thing to do was to get the club out of the hole, then arrange matters so the slump wouldn't occur again. He favored a pooling of the receipts for the same thing might occur next year with some other town, and as a result the league might be disbanded at almost any time. He also said that he thought the Newark fans were the hardest lot of losers he ever saw in his life, and for this statement he was roundly applauded. He also suggested that 250 shares be divided into tenth shares and sold for $10 each.

Mr. Smythe then asked about strengthening the team and the purchase of players. He was answered by Mr. Stasel, who said that the proceeds realized in a league of this size would not warrant the buying of players, that they had to be developed and if possible sold to teams higher up in the business. In reply to his first question as to what was needed, he replied that about $500 was due the players and there was no money to pay them with.

Among the others that made short speeches was Mr. H. R. Scott, who told of the team last year and what was being done now to secure players. At this juncture Secretary Hopkins entered and was immediately called upon to give a statement of conditions.

He said that in gate receipts last year $18,000 was taken in. The visiting teams were paid about $6,000 and the balance was paid out in salaries. About $3,200 was realized from the grandstand, $275 from the sale of cushions, $200 on the sale of tickets, the fence was sold for about $200, and the program brought in about $140. When the expenses were paid there remained in the treasury $219. Three thousand and five hundred dollars was realized from the sale of players and after they had been paid their percentage and after $3,100 had been paid on debts contracted the year before there remained then about $500 to start the season with. The gate receipts last year paid the salaries while the grand stand did not quite pay the expenses of the team. After the $500 had been deposited with President Quinn this season and when the other expenses were settled the team really started the season with nothing, for the exhibition games were failures from a financial standpoint. The average game so far this season hasn't paid the visiting team their guarantee. Already they are about $1,400 in the hole.

start of the regular season. Joplin is anxious to secure his services again this season, but Harry wants to land in new territory and try his hand. He is confident that he can pull the Molders out of last place, and will take hold with a spirit that should be felt by every man on the team and every fan in the city of Newark.

Ellis will arrive in Newark some time Friday and will immediately assume command of the squad. He is in fine physical condition and will be able to take his turn in the box regularly.

A PROSPERITY PANIC?

How It May Be Turned to Good Account For the People.

That the panic of 1907-8 is called by some a "prosperity panic," probably by those who would avoid their share of responsibility for it, will bring little comfort to the thousands who have lost the means of livelihood or to the wives and children who feel the bitter pangs of hunger. No panic was ever a "prosperity panic" in the sense of being caused by general prosperity among the people, though it might be caused by prosperity among a few at the expense of the many.

But this panic may possibly be the cause of prosperity in the future. If it leads the people to sit down and cast up their accounts with those who enjoy tariff monopolies and other unjust privileges; if it gives them time to observe how the trusts have driven down the prices of the raw materials and labor which the trusts buy and have driven up the prices of the products which the trusts sell, all under the protection of a high tariff wall, then good may come out of evil and the panic may be truly called a "prosperity panic."

CONFERENCE OF GOVERNORS.

Views of Some on Conservation of the Country's Natural Resources.

Views on the conference of state governors and other notables called by President Roosevelt to discuss the conserving of the natural resources of the United States were expressed as follows by Governor John A. Johnson and others.

Discussing the White House conference Governor Johnson said:

I think that some good should come of it. I do not see now just wherein it takes on a governmental aspect. As I understand it, the problem is to make the coal supply and things of like nature largely of an engineering nature. I can't see how a state or the federal government can dictate to a man who owns a coal mine how he shall mine his coal. But he can be educated, and the conference, I should think, will be largely of an educational nature.

None of the correspondence that I have received on the subject has indicated that the purpose of the meeting is to extend the federal power. If that should develop I am sure that it would meet quick and solid resistance.

I have views on that subject. We have had recent and unpleasant experience with the federal usurpation of power in my state. I am not in favor of the state surrendering one more function to the federal government. The federal government has appropriated too much power already. If the governors have been brought here to surrender the authority of their states—if they have brought us here to make Alexander Hamiltons of us—we shall have to object strenuously. But if that is the case it has yet to develop.

The governor, discussing an annual meeting of governors, said:

I would favor such a gathering somewhere in the middle west, where it would be equally accessible from all states. The laws in the several states are so different that any movement toward uniformity should be encouraged. At these meetings the governors by discussion and comparison could find out which states have the best laws on subjects of importance, and these could be recommended to their several legislatures.

Governor E. S. Stuart of Pennsylvania before leaving for the conference said:

The president's administration has brought about and accomplished a great many policies which have been beneficial to the American people, but he has never proposed anything of greater interest to those living and those to come than this conference called to endeavor to arrange some plan for conserving our natural resources.

Pennsylvania some years ago began, among other things, the preservation of its forests and today has one of the best organizations for the purpose in the country. It has achieved as much as, possibly more than, any other state along this line.

At present we have nearly a million acres of reservation, which the state is taking care of and planting with new trees. Pennsylvania is doing that which in the future will make what are now virtually waste lands not only valuable in assisting the preservation of our water supply, but of immeasurable benefit to coming generations.

Governor Charles M. Floyd of New Hampshire, who was full of the conference, said:

I had no idea that the object and possibilities of the conference are really so great as was proved to us by the president. I see now that this conference is to be historic, not only for the unique fact of the summoning of governors and specialists into touch with each other, but for results that may be confidently anticipated.

Governor Thomas M. Campbell and the delegation from Texas were determined to advertise some of the natural resources of their state. The other afternoon when the delegates entered the White House they found awaiting them a great bunch of the fragrant jasmine blossom with a courteous attendant in charge urging each and every one to take all he could carry. The delegates responded to the overtures, and all the coats in the east room were decorated with huge white blooms.

TO SAVE THE DROWNING.

Surgeon Advocates Cutting Open the Chest and Working Heart by Hand.

It is believed by Dr. D. F. Sullivan, who while operating on Nuncio C. Chial at St. Francis' hospital in Hartford, Conn., the other day twice saved his patient from death by gently grasping the heart and squeezing it in time with its normal pulsations until it beat again of its own accord, that many lives might be saved by this method of artificial respiration. To all appearances the man was dead twice, and yet he lived again when the heart was squeezed, sending the blood coursing through the arteries.

Dr. Sullivan thinks that if a person could be operated upon immediately after being taken from the water in many drowning cases life might be conserved. He advocates opening the body and removing the ribs until the heart is visible and is accessible in order that the fingers may be inserted to handle it. In many accidents life still lingers long after the person seems to have ceased to breathe.

To Cut Out Clapping in Theater.

A new method by which the audience at a theater can show its approval or disapproval of a play without disturbing the performance is suggested by the Italian dramatist Traversi. Before leaving the theater every person is to drop a ticket into one of three boxes marked "good," "indifferent" or "bad."

Progress in Mexico.

A notable example of the industrial advance now taking place in Mexico is the recent erection of a packing house covering about twenty acres of ground. The power used is electric, and the machinery equipment comprised forty-five car loads, 95 per cent of which was of American make.

PITTSBURG

Interesting Booklet Just Published Shows Financial Strength of the Smoky City.

The Bank of Pittsburgh N. A. has just published a booklet giving some interesting statistics about Pittsburgh's financial strength. The figures for example show:

First—Pittsburgh leads large cities in proportion of banking capital and surplus to gross deposits: Pittsburgh 47.1 per cent, Philadelphia 26 per cent, New York 19.2 per cent.

Second—Pittsburgh is the second city in the United States in banking capital and surplus, New York, of course, being first.

Third—The capitalized strength of banks in the Pittsburgh district (capital and surplus), $210,000,000 which is 31 millions more than the capital and surplus of all the banks in Indiana and Illinois including Chicago with a total population of over eight million or nearly four times greater than the population of the Pittsburgh district. The capital and surplus of the district is 1-15th of that of all the banks in the United States and 1-24th of that of all the organized banks in the world or five million more than the combined capital of the Bank of England, Imperial Bank of Germany and Russia and all the organized banks of Ireland and Scotland.

Pittsburgh's per cent is larger than the combined per cent of Iowa, Neb., Mich., Mo., Maine, N. D., Kas., Wis. and S. D. It is 5900 manufacturing establishments.

NARROW ESCAPE

For Frank Hull Well Known Horseman at Licking Race Course Friday Morning.

Frank Hull, the well known horseman, had a narrow escape from death or serious injury about 10 o'clock Friday morning, caused by the loss of a wheel from the sulky which he was riding on the fair ground driving track. Mr. Hull had been jogging the horse and had just turned the animal to score for a fast "work out" mile when the right wheel of the sulky flew off, throwing the driver to the ground and frightening the animal into a gallop. Hull hung to the lines and was dragged a distance of about 30 feet, when realizing that his efforts to stop the animal were useless he was forced to release his hold on the lines to save himself from injury. The animal circled the track twice before he was caught but was uninjured. The sulky was slightly damaged. The trainer suffered several bruises and scratches but was otherwise unharmed.

Where to Look For Relief.

Effective relief from the tribute exacted by the trusts is not to be found in suits to compel dissolution of a trust in its present form when it can immediately reorganize in another and perhaps more dangerous form, nor by large fines to be paid out of trust coffers when the fines can be assessed upon trust patrons through an increase in the price of the trust's product. But a large measure of relief can be had by removing the tariff wall which protects the trust from foreign competition and enables it to extort monopoly prices from American consumers.

Extortion of the Dingley Tariff.

All the robberies and thefts committed by all the insurance officers since life insurance was first originated do not amount to as much extortion as the Dingley bill for one year—Governor Cummins of Iowa.

PRAISE FOR CANAL WORK.

Emil L. Boas Predicts Success of Great Panama Waterway.

Emil L. Boas, resident director and general manager of the Hamburg-American line, who returned recently to New York, with Mrs. Boas, from a month's trip to Jamaica, Colombia, Costa Rica and the isthmus of Panama, in speaking of his trip said:

"First and foremost in interest of anything seen during my trip is that wonderful undertaking, the Panama canal. It is simply overpowering, and after seeing what has been done and getting acquainted with the men who are doing the work the conclusion is made that all the great difficulties will be overcome and the stupendous work brought to a successful finish.

"If you stand on the height opposite the Gatun dam and have Major Hardy, in charge there, point out a great gash in the hill which has been made in the last half year, you get an idea what a 'million yards of earth' removed represent.

"Another way of appreciating these quantities is to watch the excavator at work. There it stands at the side of the hill, scooping up earth or rubble or big stones and dumping them into a waiting dirt train. It dips, fills, lifts and drops incessantly, but how long it takes to fill a car—a train! Everywhere are excavators of varied patterns, pneumatic drills and dirt trains. It is a wonderful scene of industry and activity, and there is not the slightest doubt that the American government will complete what first was advocated in 1920 by a Spaniard, Diego de Mercado, and frowned on its sacrilegious by King Philip II. of Spain, then actually taken up and abandoned by the French people and declared by eminent engineers to be an almost impossible undertaking.

Mr. Boas said that the mosquito, a great disseminator of disease in the canal belt, was practically extinct through the systematic efforts of the American health authorities there.

Odd Feature of a Trial.
A murder trial now in progress in St. Charles, Mo., has an odd interstate feature. Daniel Dempsey, village marshal of Grafton, Ill., is accused of killing one Claude Allemang. It appears that Dempsey followed Allemang from Grafton across the river into St. Charles county and had him arrested. The prisoner agreed to return without requisition papers and after starting back tried to escape, whereupon Dempsey shot him. It is contended that Dempsey had no authority to shoot Allemang, being an Illinois officer in Missouri territory. On the other hand, it is maintained by Dempsey that Allemang lived until he reached Grafton, Ill. The question at issue is in which state the dead man's heart stopped beating.

We understand a stand patter to be one who insists on maintaining tariff schedules in spite of the fact that those schedules are used as a shield for admitted monopoly and extortion. Whether James G. Blaine would be in this class if now living may be clearly seen by the following quotation from his work "Twenty Years of Congress": "Protection in the perfection of its design does not invite competition from abroad, but is based on the contrary principle that competition at home will always prevent monopoly on the part of the capitalists, assure good wages to the laboring man and defend the consumers against the evils of extortion." At present, when scores of trusts and combinations are enabled to practice "extortion" on American consumers because they are freed from foreign competition by a high tariff, it is plain that Mr. Blaine would not be among those who consider the Dingley schedules sacred.

"THE MUDLARK"

Famous Machine Which Has Seen Much Service Visits This City Thursday.

Andrew Auble and C. E. Moore of Akron, arrived in the city Thursday from Zanesville in the famous old "Mudlark," an Olds automobile, which has seen more service than falls to the lot of the average machine.

Mr. Auble is the proprietor of a large garage in Akron and is one of the best known drivers in the country. Mr. Moore is a representative of the Shipps-McIntire league of newspapers and the gentlemen are making a slow trip over the state, preparing data for a map which will shortly be issued in the interest of the Ohio Automobile association and their trip and experiences will be fully described for the state meeting to be held in Cleveland on the 16th inst.

The "Mudlark" was taken from the Lansing factory and shipped to New York for the use of Ernest Kehler, who was killed a few days after its arrival on the Philadelphia race course.

The machine was turned over to Ralph Owens, who entered it and drove it through in the race from New York to Florida. Forty entries had been invited for the run and only the one finished, the "Mudlark." Odds of 5 to 1 had been offered in the Eastern cities that it would never finish, but difficult as the course turned out to be the machine pulled through, surprising everyone.

The machine next won the 100 mile fast race for stock cars without using a single repair and finished second in the slow race. It was then taken from Ormond, Fla., to Philadelphia and finished first in the 2,000 mile non-stop race, that is, the motor was never stopped during the time of the race. It next made a perfect score in the Springfield, Mass., endurance run.

Since that time the famous old machine has been put through a stunt of 30,000 miles by its present owner, Mr. Auble.

The gentlemen left Newark Thursday evening and were accompanied by B. B. Hoover and H. D. Hale of this city. They made a run to Columbus and were entertained in that city at the Ohio club in the evening by Col. W. O. Taylor, one of the best known citizens of the capital city, and an enthusiastic driver. Mr. Taylor also had as his dinner guests in addition to the above gentlemen, Fred McManus, the Pittsburgh chauffeur, who was one of the first to drive a car between New York and San Francisco, and Major Edward Brooks, builder and designer of racing yachts, of New York City.

Friday morning the auto party left for Cincinnati and will finish their trip in about ten days, winding up at the state convention of the Ohio Automobile association at Cleveland.

HOW ONE GAINS

Success in Money Matters—By the Ad Writer of the Buckeye State Building and Loan Company, Rankin Building, 22 West Gay Street, Columbus, Ohio.

THIRD WAY. By doing the work you have at hand better than any one else can do it. The best workman is seldom out of employment. The best artist in any line receives large compensation. To illustrate. Great singers get as high as $500 or more for a single concert. We have fine workmen and fine artists in Central Ohio, and many of them are placing their money with and getting five per cent. interest from The Buckeye which loans all money on first mortgage on homes.

IMMENSE LOSS BY LIGHTNING

These are some statistics gathered by the State Fire Marshal from the insurance companies from the State of Ohio only. Forty-eight persons were killed, 309 stunned, 727 buildings struck and 654 fires resulted from lightning alone.

The loss on the buildings fired by lightning is $252,447, and not one of these buildings had a modern lightning conductor. On the farm mutuality, which are now carrying 275 millions of insurance on Ohio buildings find that their losses from lightning in summer is two-thirds as great as from all other causes in the whole year.

In Michigan the Farmers' Mutual companies lost in 1906 more than three millions from this cause.

The fact that the statistics collected by the Fire Marshal's office show the mutual fire insurance companies to have suffered from lightning the enormous proportion of 75 per cent of their total losses. Secretary of the Union Mutual (60 per cent of their losses have been caused by lightning,) said $2.50 is the only money this company has ever paid for damage to a building that was protected by a Modern Lightning Conductor, since its organization in 1873.

These statistics prove that every building should be protected by a Modern Lightning Conductor, which will decrease your insurance rate and eliminate the possibilities of damage or fire from lightning.

Come in and get my estimate on protection for your buildings.

GRANVILLE

Granville, June 5—At the last regular meeting of the village council, Messrs. Ashbrook, Robinson, Lee and Chamberlin were present with Mayor B. I. Jones in the chair.

An ordinance making a contract with the Crawford Natural Gas company for ten years at 15 cents meter rate, was passed.

The report of the Board of Public Service, which showed the village water and light plant to be in excellent condition, was received and filed.

On motion, a resolution was adopted providing that all insulations of electric light wires and the trimming of trees be done by the Board of Public Service.

On motion, it was decided to clean "Sugar Loaf" hill and put it in good shape by commencement time.

The legal representative of the city was instructed to prepare an ordinance providing for the repairing of streets and sidewalks in the village. He was also instructed to prepare an ordinance prohibiting wrestling matches in the village.

New York, June 5—Automobilists have a treat in store for them at Jamaica, L. I. Friday next. On that day the fastest cars on this side of the Atlantic will meet in competition for the New York Herald trophy at a flying kilometre. Many other cars will compete for many other prizes, but the keenest competition and the fastest time will be for the Herald trophy. Six famous automobiles already have been nominated for competition for the Herald trophy. These are among the most powerful machines ever manufactured in or brought to this country. Four nations are represented in these six entries—Italy and the United States, with two cars each, and England and France, with one each. The list will probably be doubled, perhaps tripled.

Republican Conventions In Chicago

The Coming One Will Be the Seventh

by ROBERTUS LOVE

Copyright, 1908, by Robertus Love.

When Lincoln Was Named
In "The Wigwam"

Rapidly the great city grew up into the air as well as out on the prairie. Her principal streets became canyons through which poured rivers of humanity between precipitous walls, towering cliffs shelved with suits of rooms wherein was transacted a large portion of that business which makes America a matter of marvel to the more slow going old world.

About the only commemorative affair that Chicago ever went after with fierce determination because of fear that it would go somewhere else was the Columbian exposition or World's fair of 1893. Chicago wanted the exposition just to prove to New York, her chief competitor, that the city by the lake was also a place not to be sneezed at. New York, which is too big to care a penny about such things as a general rule, pouted and snickered for several years because the western wonder carried off the World's fair prize.

The exposition really hurt Chicago more than it helped and for the rather paradoxical reason that the city was well enough known already and did not need the publicity attending a successful fair. Chicago's continued growth was inevitable anyway, and the exposition merely demoralized matters for a time. But Chicago got over her World's fair, as she got over her big fire, both the champions in their respective lines at the time they happened. It requires a worse calamity than a conflagration or an exposition to kill off a city situated like Chicago.

Chicago has many beauties and aesthetic things. There is Lincoln park, for instance, with the Lincoln statue and the lake shore drive. There is Jackson park, with its field museum, monumental relic of the late World's fair. There is the Newberry library, and a great big public library, not Car-

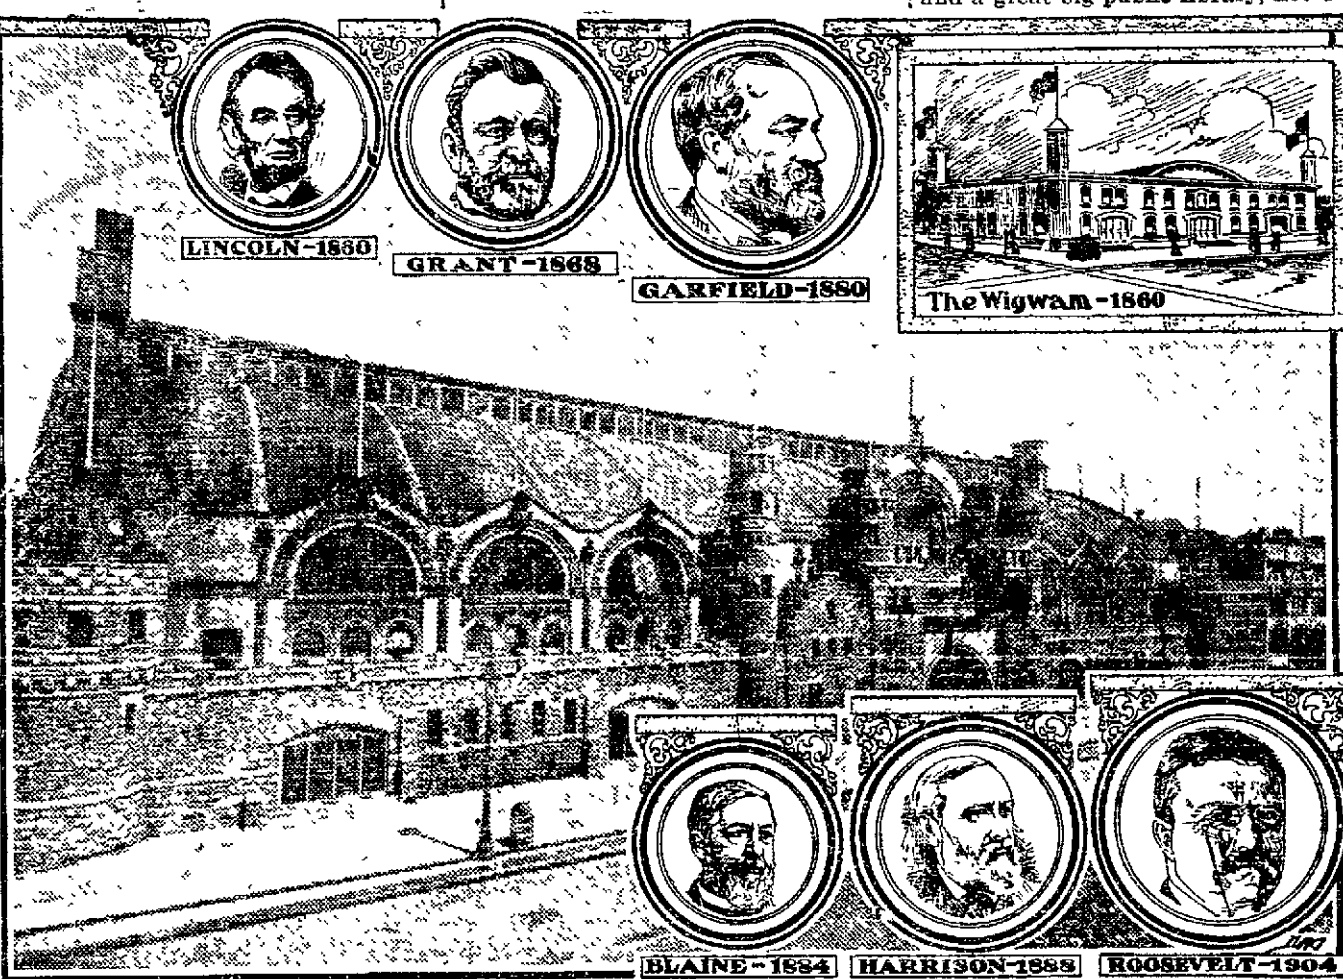

CHICAGO is the favorite city for Republican national conventions. Of the thirteen quadrennial conventions held by the great political party since its birth six have been held in Chicago. This year Chicago is again the meeting place. The Republican convention opens there June 16 to nominate candidates for president and vice president of the United States. Thus to the great Illinois metropolis must be credited exactly half of the national conventions of the Republican party, while the Democratic party has held four of its nineteen national conventions in Chicago.

First of the Republican party's Chicago convention was that of 1860, forever memorable for having nominated for president the illustrious emancipator, Abraham Lincoln. In 1868 the convention again was held in Chicago, the nominee being the second great figure developed by the civil war, Ulysses S. Grant. Beginning with 1880 three consecutive conventions met in Chicago. That of the year mentioned nominated James A. Garfield. In 1884 James G. Blaine was named, while in 1888 the convention placed Benjamin Harrison in nomination. For three consecutive years the Republicans again deserted the great city on Lake Michigan's shore, but in 1904 the convention sat in Chicago, nominating Theodore Roosevelt.

Of the six candidates nominated at Chicago by the Republican party all but one have been elected. Blaine was the only candidate who failed to win. Lincoln, Grant, Garfield, Harrison and Roosevelt were sent to the White House by way of Chicago. Five triumphs out of six trials make an excellent showing for Chicago as a lucky place for the launching of presidential nominees.

wam," as the convention hall was called, and after a struggle destined to be historic placed in line for the chief magistracy of the nation the immortal rail splitter of Sangamon county, somewhat contemptuously described in eastern sections as an ignorant, uncouth country lawyer, his chief opponent being the celebrated and cultured William H. Seward of New York.

Ten years later Chicago had trebled her population and was running neck and neck with St. Louis, her Missouri neighbor on the Mississippi below the mouth of the Missouri. For some years the race for supremacy between these two cities was close and exciting, but finally Chicago began to run so fast that St. Louis decided not to try to keep up. In 1880 Chicago had half a million people, an enormous population for that period.

COLISEUM, SCENE OF THE REPUBLICAN NATIONAL CONVENTION, AND REPUBLICAN PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATES NOMINATED IN CHICAGO.

But location rather than luck causes the frequent selection of Chicago. The city is geographically a considerable distance from the center, but it is not far from the population center of the United States. In the matter of transportation, both by water on the great lakes and by rail, Chicago is unsurpassed. It is the greatest railroad center in America, though in danger of losing its preeminence in that respect to Kansas City. One may reach Chicago with comparative ease from any place in the United States where there is a railroad connection. Another advantage of the city for great conventions is that of hotel facilities. So big is Chicago that the many thousands of extra visitors who attend the national conventions create scarcely a ripple of excitement so far as numbers are concerned. They can be accommodated with ease, and even swallowed up in the vast throngs without being particularly noticeable.

Chicago and New York are the only cities in America where this condition prevails. New York being too far to one side of the country, Chicago thus becomes the inevitable convention city. Chicago makes no particular effort to obtain great conventions, knowing that they belong to her as a natural right and will come anyhow.

The population of Chicago is now approximately 2,600,000. The city's area is about 260 square miles. For twenty-six miles along the shore of Lake Michigan the great city stretches, running back ten or more miles inland.

The growth of Chicago was one of the world wonders of the nineteenth century. In the year 1830, when the first national political convention in the United States was held, that of the Anti-Masonic party, Chicago was merely a collection of log houses, with less than a hundred inhabitants.

When the second Republican national convention, which was the first to be held in Chicago, met in 1860 and nominated Abraham Lincoln and Hannibal Hamlin for president and vice president the population was less than 110,000. It was a busy, bustling burg, to be sure, where the Republican delegates gathered in the famous "Wig-negram, but all home built. There are miles and miles and miles of splendid homes, and there are monuments and fountains and an art institute. There is even a literary set, some members of which hyphenate their names. Pork packing and slaughter housing are by no means the prevailing features of Chicago.

For one thing, Chicago had to teach the rest of the world how to build skyscrapers. About a quarter of a century ago the first building of the skyscraper type in the world was erected in Chicago, being made possible by the use of the steel skeleton framework.

NATIVE CHALDEAN

Prepares Interesting Sketch for Advocate Readers of Mohammed's Journey Into Paradise.

K. B. Yohannan a Chaldean from the city of Babylon is now in the city, a guest at the Hotel Warden. Mr. Yohannan is a student in the University of Wooster, who has been in America scarcely three years and who is preparing himself to become a missionary to his home country.

As is known the Christian people of this section of the world are persecuted mercilessly by the Turkish government and one of the ideas instilled into the youthful followers of Mohammed is that every Christian done away with brings the follower of Mohammed that much nearer perfection. Mr. Yohannan like other Christian boys of Chaldean was compelled by the government to attend the schools of Persia and he is thoroughly familiar with the Mohammedan religion, having studied the Mohammedan book of faith, the Koran, carefully for eight years.

For the exclusive use of the Advocate Mr. Yohannan volunteered to prepare the following sketch of the journey of Mohammed into Paradise, the main teaching on which is based the Mohammedan religion which today has nearly 177,000,000 followers:

The following brief description of Mohammed's traditional journey to Paradise may fittingly illustrate some of the singular ideas of Islam.

The angel Gabriel appeared to Mohammed with an Aborak, a strange animal, a cross between an ass and a mule. This long eared brute began to talk, demanding some concession from the new prophet.

Having promised the creature a golden stall in heaven, Mohammed was permitted to mount. In the twinkling of an eye he arrived at Jerusalem where, after a pleasant interview with the patriarchs and prophets of all ages, he ascended with Gabriel upon a ladder extending from the "City of David" to the "City of God". As he arrived at the portals of heaven he saw this large inscription on one side, "There is no God but God," and on the other "Mohammed is his apostle".

The heavenly host being informed that Mohammed had come, at once the pearly gates were thrown wide open and upon entering he was quickly embraced by Father Adam, who was happy to meet his most illustrious son. From this heaven, the stars, which he described as being hollow silver balls, were suspended by golden chains.

What would become of faith in Mohammed's visions if modern science were introduced among his followers?

Quickly Mohammed was taken from the first to the second heaven, a journey of 500 years, where he met the angel of the Cocks, who was so tall as to reach from the first to the second heaven. Nearly every morning this big rooster joins God in singing a song that fills the entire universe with its melodious strains. Every being on earth hears them out man. In this heaven he met Noah, who was the presiding dignitary and he was tendered a most cordial reception as he passed through the golden streets. In the third heaven he describes the angels as being very large. One of the most gigantic required 70,000 days' journey between the eyes. Here too, he found the same inscription as in the first and second heavens.

After a short interview with Moses in the fourth, or emerald heaven, he was taken to the fifth to meet Joseph, then the sixth heaven of carbuncle, where he beheld John the Baptist.

Radiant with light and ruled over by Jesus was the seventh heaven, in which he was attended by a vast multitude of joyous innuants and innumerable angels of dazzling beauty, each of whom possessed 70,000 heads, with 70,000 mouths to each head and 70,000 tongues to each mouth, all singing and singing, day and night, unceasingly. Here the prophet, with glorious pomp, was presented to God, whose face was concealed by 70,000 veils.

Here too, on the side of the divine throne, Mohammed beheld the inscription: "There is no God but God," and on the other, "Mohammed is His Apostle." God, after saluting Mohammed, commissioned him to return to earth with full authority. All this the faithful most firmly believe.

As we pursue the career of such a heathen religion, so infernally atrocious in theory and practice, our pained hearts can not help but exclaim, "How long, oh Lord, how long!" May we not confidently cherish the hope that the shining cross of the humble Nazarene that has conqueringly risen above the powers of darkness and tyranny shall sooner or later as its final achievement, triumph over the blood red crescent of Mohammed?

KETCHELL WINS BRUISING FIGHT

Milwaukee, June 5.—Stanley Ketchell of Grand Rapids, Mich., was given the decision over Billy Papke of Kewanee, Ill., at the end of a fast and furious 15-round bout before the Milwaukee Boxing club at the Hippodrome building last night before a crowd estimated at 6,000 persons. The contest was a terrific affair from the tap of the gong to the finish with the exception of the time during which the men were engaged in clinches. Time and time again Ketchell forced his man to the ropes with his furious onslaught of rights and lefts to the head and body. Only in the eighth round did Papke have an even break. Ketchell in the first round took considerable steam out of his man by landing a terrific right to the jaw, sending the Kewanee boy to his knees.

At the end of the last round Papke was plainly in distress and would hardly have lasted another round.

Both men trained faithfully and were in the pink of condition. Hugo Kelly, Sam Langford, Jack (Twin) Sullivan, Jack (Philadelphia) O'Brien, Uli Russell and Peter Jackson offers to put up a side bet of $5,000 for a match.

Coshocton Man Said to be Very Much Married—is Now Hiding in Missouri.

Coshocton, June 5.—Ben F. Stevens, of this city, indicted for non-support and now supposed to be in hiding in Missouri, is a much-married man, if allegations of local authorities are true. It is said Stevens married Besie Cheney of Newcomerstown, at Steubenville three years ago, a boy being born to them 18 months ago. Just a few days after the birth of the child he is alleged to have married Catherine Brucken of this city, at Clarksburg, W. Va. A newspaper story containing the name of Mrs. Ben Stevens of Coshocton, aroused the suspicion of his Newcomerstown wife. Investigation followed, and a comparison of photographs told the story of alleged duplicity.

Stevens has been traveling for a local novelty advertising concern, but disappeared from St. Joseph, Mo., two weeks ago. Authorities here claim to have evidence that he has a third wife in Missouri.

FLATS ON COLONY IDEA.

Each of Five Under One Roof to Reflect Ideas of Occupant.

Five Chicago men, having become tired of paying rent and desiring to live in apartments constructed after their own ideas, have subscribed $100,000 to erect in Chicago an apartment building in which the plans of each one will be carried out in the minutest detail.

Each of the five will own the flat he occupies. Instead of paying rent each will pay his share of the cost of operating the building, including heating, lighting and janitor service and the wages of a valet in common, who will be installed in a room on the first floor. The five, who are said to be the first who ever have adopted this plan of avoiding the payment of rent in an apartment building, are James Pettit, J. B. Terbell, Benjamin Marshall, Charles E. Fox and an official of the Rock Island railroad.

Each apartment will contain twelve rooms. A feature of the building, which will be of the old colonial style of architecture, will be that the first floor will be used as a garage, with room for five machines.

Refrigerating plants and other conveniences will be in the building, which is expected to be the most novel and elegant of its kind in Chicago.

SALUTE TO POLICE URGED.

Chicago Woman Wants Children Taught to Honor Officers.

Some school children in Chicago the other day put into practice a novel plan advocated by a clubwoman, saluting all policemen on the street as a mark of respect for the authority they represent. The giant, good natured officers generally returned the salutation. Many of them can do it with military smartness as the result of recent drills.

"We think too little of our policemen," said Mrs. Edward Roby of Chicago at a recent luncheon of the Chicago Colony of New England Women at the Woman's Athletic club. "They protect our homes and often endanger their lives in our behalf. Their calling should stir our patriotism, and every child should be taught to salute the star which the policeman wears."

Time is money, especially if you take it by the forelock.

IRON TRADE REVIEW

Cleveland, Ohio, June 4.—The Iron Trade Review today says:

Important developments have been following each other closely in the iron and steel market. After a strict observation for about five months of the prices of most finished and semi-finished iron and steel products, the first break in the situation came this week with the announcement of a four dollar a ton reduction in steel bars. The lapse of a few hours from this action brought forth the word that the bar iron makers had followed the lead and had cut their product three dollars a ton.

These price changes, particularly that of steel bars, coming so abruptly upon the heels of the meeting of the general iron and steel committee in New York two weeks ago, when the statement was given to the public that the prices of steel would not be lowered until fall, has left the trade in a somewhat bewildered state. When reductions were probably least anticipated they have come, and the expectation has naturally been created among buyers that the cut represents but the opening wedge, and that a general readjustment is close at hand. The outcome of the next several weeks promises to be awaited with intense interest.

Makers of steel bars, in explanation of their decisive action at this time, declare that the present is regarded as the favorable moment for the employment of such measures as are calculated to stimulate business. It had been repeatedly stated, in the pursuit of the maintenance policy that prices would be reduced at the proper time, if such an impetus was considered essential to the recuperation of the industry.

The implement manufacturers, among the largest consumers of steel bars in the country, have recently been making preliminary arrangements for coming into the market for their last half and yearly requirements, and have been demanding lower prices. Rather than make any special concessions to these manufacturers, the steel bars committee decided to extend the benefit of any reduction to the entire trade, and make the revised schedule operative up to October 1.

The subsequent action of the bar iron makers in cutting their prices promises to have an interesting bearing upon the results of the annual wage conference with the Amalgamated Association of Iron Steel and Tin Workers, which is now in session. The week in pig iron has been somewhat less animated than the previous several weeks. Inquiry continues good, but furnaces are showing more indifference as to seeking business at present quotations, and are enjoying an improved sentiment. Prices are firm and are displaying a tendency toward a moderate advance.

WEAK WOMEN

NEED A TONIC AS THEY APPROACH THE AGE OF FORTY.

Much Suffering Is Caused by Being Unprepared to Meet the Extra Strain to Be Borne at That Time.

As a woman approaches the age of forty or thereabouts, she should pay particular attention to her health. The hard work, which she may have been accustomed to do and the worry and excitement of her daily life should be lessened or avoided as much as possible. As her health after she passes this time will depend in a large measure upon it, every woman owes it to herself to build up her health during these years. It is absolutely necessary that the blood be made pure and rich, thereby enabling all the organs of the body to perform their work regularly. For this purpose Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have long been recognized as the standard medicine, because of their great blood-building and tonic properties.

Mrs. Minnie A. Kohling, a professional nurse, of 1005 1-2 North Illinois street, Indianapolis, Ind., says:

"An operation for appendicitis left me in a weakened condition and I approached the age of forty in a poor state of health. I was sick for two years, being very restless and had sick headaches all the time. I did not have much of an appetite and lived mostly on fruits and light foods, but even these caused so much gas on my stomach that I was continually belching it. Oftentimes there seemed to be a weight on my stomach."

"I was doctoring with local physicians but did not get better so decided to give them up and try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills which I had read about in the paper. I noticed after taking a few boxes of the pills that I was beginning to get a little color. I took several boxes more and was cured. I have been in good health ever since and able to do my work."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are adapted for diseases due to impure blood and shattered nerves. They are invaluable in the grip and fevers and sick headaches, dizziness, nervousness, neuralgia, and even partial paralysis and locomotor ataxia.

A valuable booklet entitled "Plain Talks to Women" will be sent free, in a sealed envelope, upon request, to any woman interested.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box or six boxes $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

TOLEDO LAD

Conducted His Own Case in Court Against Assailant Who Was Fined by the Judge

Toledo, O., June 5.—After causing the arrest of John Cummings, several years his senior, Thomas Fulton, aged 19, conducted his own case in police court.

Thomas told the court that Cummings had handled him roughly and pushed him in the river. The defendant started to ask the lad some questions, and after answering them he subjected Cummings to a rigid cross-examination.

The court bailiff attempted to prevent the complainant from talking, when the prosecutor said: "Let him alone, Bailiff, he makes a dandy prosecutor."

Young Fulton was his case and the defendant was fined the costs.

DYNAMITING OF FARMS

Samuel J. Crawford's Plan to Conserve the Moisture.

WILL ALSO PREVENT FLOODS.

Former Governor of Kansas Thinks That if Hardpan Beneath Upper Soil Were Broken Up the Land Would Hold More Moisture—Wants Government to Experiment.

Experts in the agricultural department at Washington are now wrestling with a new idea to conserve moisture and to prevent floods. It was suggested to them recently by former Governor Samuel J. Crawford of Kansas, who is a practical farmer. It simply involves loosening the subsoil.

Governor Crawford calls attention to the fact that the soil most everywhere is underlaid at a depth of from one to ten feet with a streak of hardpan, through which it is almost impossible for water to penetrate. As a result, in case of heavy rain the only soil that can absorb the moisture is that above hardpan. When this takes up all it can hold there is nothing left for the remainder of the water but to run off on the surface, causing the floods. After the floods the heat of the sun draws the moisture out of the thin soil and sooner or later gets it out of the deeper soil. The governor's plan, says a Washington correspondent of the St. Paul Pioneer Press, is to break up the hardpan with dynamite and let the water down into the soil under it.

"It has been demonstrated that underneath this hardpan is nearly always a porous soil or gravel," said he, "and it is capable of holding vast quantities of water, provided the water can ever get to it. If the hardpan is broken up, it would seem that more water would go in the ground than does now."

This fact already has been demonstrated to the governor's satisfaction at least. He discovered it by accident on his own farm. He started to bore a well and after sinking the drill about six feet in the ground abandoned the place. A hired man in a spirit of fun put in the hole a stick of dynamite and exploded it. That was three years ago. Since that time the grass at that spot is always luxuriant, even when the rest of the pasture is absolutely barren. It showed that where the hardpan was "shaken up" the moisture was conserved. The governor has written the secretary of agriculture suggesting that the government test the matter.

"It will cost but a trifle," the governor said, "and it might prove a solution of the whole scheme of flood prevention and conservation of moisture. I suggest that the department dynamite a quarter section of land out west and see what happens. If the experiment proves a success the farmers will take it up readily and dynamite their farms. It is barely possible that the idea which came to me as a result of an accident may enable us to grow two blades of grass where one grew before and stop the floods of the future. I think it is worth while for the secretary of agriculture to give it a trial anyhow."

LEATHER HORSESHOES.

Novelty Used In Australia's Grassy and Sandy Regions.

A new market for leather, according to Le Franc Parleur, is to be found in Australia, concerning which this French journal says:

"In districts of Australia the horse is shod with leather instead of iron. The feet receive better support. This novelty is employed only in regions where the ground is permanently covered with grass or fine sand. In a country like Australia, where stocks are sometimes scarce and a horseman may experience great difficulty at a critical moment in finding a horseshoe, such an innovation is a useful novelty. With extra shoes whose weight is a trifle—shoes, too, that can be fitted without trouble—it is practicable to travel without fear of the horse losing its shoe and being injured. Though the leather shoe is more expensive than the iron shoe, the higher price is repaid by the superior advantages.

"In some quarters the horses were never shod with iron. Probably shoes, like drivers, will be supplied before long, thus avoiding the disagreeable experience of a horse's hoof wearing too rapidly. It is not impossible the innovation will soon extend to every country where the nature of the soil permits it to be used."

Ice Cream For Breakfast.

"A new fad has come this way," said a Philadelphia confectioner the other day, "and that is to eat ice cream at breakfast. A short time ago I was surprised by a request from one of my customers to serve a quart of strawberry cream at his house every morning before 7 o'clock. I thought it was just an individual peculiarity at the time, but since then four or five more have made the same request, and now I have an early morning route along with the milkman. After all, it is a very sensible idea in hot weather, as the cooling dish gives a good start for the day. It takes the place of fruit at the same time and is both nourishing and refreshing. I haven't the slightest notion where the idea originated. I never heard of it before that first customer made his request, and I don't believe it has been brought from any other city. It seems to be just simultaneously growing up. I spoke to several other confectioners about it, and some of them have received like requests. I shouldn't be surprised if before midsummer ice cream for breakfast should become quite popular."

CROWNINSHIELD'S CAREER.

Achievements of the Rear Admiral in His Active Naval Service.

It falls to few men in the naval service to achieve the reputation of signal ability in its various branches enjoyed by Rear Admiral A. S. Crowninshield, who recently died in Philadelphia. Aboard ship, in command of training vessels, as chief of the bureau of navigation, as ensign facing the enemy's guns in front of Fort Fisher, in all places where duty called in peace or war, he gained honors and friends and oftentimes the praise of the department.

He was born in New York state March 14, 1843, and was appointed a naval cadet in 1860 and graduated three years later. Promotion to master came within two years, to lieutenant within three and to lieutenant commander within five. In 1880 he became commander, captain in 1894, chief of the bureau of navigation with the relative rank of commodore in 1897 and rear admiral in 1902.

He saw active service at the beginning of his career. This was when ensign on the United States steam sloop Ticonderoga, which participated in both attacks on Fort Fisher in 1864 and 1865. For this service he was highly commended. He afterward commanded the training ship Portsmouth, the school ship St. Marys, was a member of the naval advisory board in New York city and commander of the United States battleship Maine in 1896-7.

On April 26, 1902, Rear Admiral Crowninshield relinquished his duties as chief of the bureau of navigation and member of the general board and departed for the European station to hoist his flag on the battleship Illinois, which took part in the naval demonstration incident to the coronation of King Edward. Secretary Long complimented him upon his administration of the bureau. In the five years he had made many notable reforms. He was a member of the board of officers which recommended the amalgamation of the line and engineer corps, which was enacted into law. As a member of the naval war board during the war with Spain he displayed sound judgment and knowledge of war conditions which were of great value to the department in the distribution of vessels and the final cornering of the Spanish squadron at Santiago. Finding it impossible at this time to procure enough men for the navy on the coast, the rear admiral suggested and Secretary Long adopted the suggestion that landmen be enlisted and trained. In a very short time thousands were receiving an education in the duties of men-of-war's men.

On leaving active service, in March, 1903, the rear admiral retired to the Anchorage, as he called his villa at Seal Harbor, Me., where, with his wife, a talented authoress, he rounded out in quiet contentment his long and active life.

THE MONITOR FLORIDA.

Dimensions of Coast Defense Vessel That Withstood Fire of Big Gun.

The monitor Florida, which was recently a target for the United States navy's biggest gun and which emerged triumphant from the firing to test the strength and resistance of eleven inch steel armor, is one of a class of four monitors built for coast defense work. She was built at Elizabethport, N. J., being completed in 1903. The cost of her hull, machinery and armor was $1,307,130, and added to this was an expenditure of $211,048 for armament and equipment. She is 252 feet long, 30 feet beam; draft, 12½ feet; displacement, 2,755 tons; 2,400 horsepower; speed, 12 knots; coal capacity, 400 tons. Her armor is eleven inches thick amidships, tapering to five inches at either end. She has a protected deck of armor one and a half inches in thickness. The armor of the barbette and turret is eleven inches thick and that of the conning tower eight inches thick.

The Florida after being especially prepared was fired upon by a twelve inch rifle on the Arkansas in Hampton Roads. The shot broke an eleven inch turret plate, but did not penetrate it, and the delicate mechanism inside was pronounced uninjured and still in working order. Efforts to destroy a new type of fighting mast also proved futile, the mast standing after five shots.

The turret, when examined after the twelve inch projectile had struck it, bore all the evidences of a fight. The paint along the seams had disappeared, many of the seams were sprung, bolts were loosened, and silvers of the plate lay around. A board dummy inside was intact, and the opinion of the officers was that even with the terrific impact the gunners in the turret would not have been injured. The mechanism in the turret bore no outward evidence of damage, and the belief was expressed that a test would find it in working order.

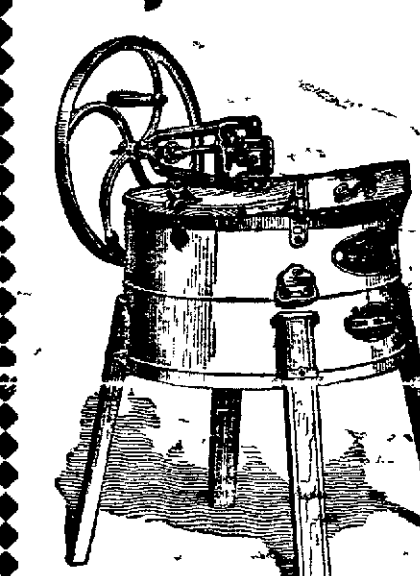

Affinity Parties.

Affinity parties are all the rage among the churches of the Norwalks, in Connecticut, says a South Norwalk dispatch. Affinity parties are unique. The young men are blindfolded and released one by one in the center of a hery of young women. The ones they catch are their "affinities." With his prize each happy "he" gets a sample of her cooking; for each fair "she" brings lunch for two. The chances of the game are somewhat affected by the ease with which upon occasion an affinity falls prey to outstretched hands.

Device to Aid Microscopes.

The wonders revealed by the ordinary microscope are increased a hundred-fold by a recent invention which enables the use of a high power lens as large as six inches in diameter, thus bringing the whole of objects instead of details only under observation.

We do not agree with those who say that it is always easy to save money. For most of us it is really very hard, especially at the start.

System is the necessary thing. So much from each pay check soon gets to be a habit; then, and scarcely till then, does it really become easy. The 4 per cent. interest is a big help.

GRANVILLE COMMENCEMENT HELD THURSDAY EVENING

Sixteen Members of the Senior Class Bid Farewell to School Days in the Historic Old Village

Splendid Program Carried Out at the Opera House
---Diplomas Presented by Superintendent Clement.

Granville, O., June 5.—The 35th annual commencement of the Granville High school, which took place at the Opera House on Thursday night, June 4, is now a thing of the past, and the sixteen young ladies and gentlemen of the class of 1908 have now passed the threshold of the schools and are entering the broad door of the great world. During the past week previous to the commencement on every hand was to be seen that fairest and daintiest of all creatures—the sweet girl graduate. At this season of the year when nature is clothed in her prettiest garb, what a dreary place this old world would be without her. Along with her is to be seen the young men of the class with that look of hope and promise which is an inspiration. They have been ushered into the broad paths of a busy world to work out their own destinies.

The thoughts and actions which would the intellect and lead us up to what the future may have in store for us, are grounded upon the foundations laid in these youthful years of school duties, labor and study. How eventful, then the time when that apprenticeship is ended and each is left to travel his or her own particular way, and we believe that the sixteen bright young men and women who graduated Thursday night are endowed with sufficient determination, natural ability and forcefulness to succeed in whatever station or position they may eventually find themselves.

The exercises were held in the Opera House, the stage of which had been beautifully decorated and presented a most attractive appearance. These annual commencements are the only occasions when the seating capacity of the building is too small. It shows the wholesome interest taken by our people in the good work of education and is a mighty stimulus to the instructors as an evidence of their good work as well as to future classes to make an effort to do their best.

Promptly at the appointed hour Superintendent Clements and the graduates took their places on the stage, the class roll being as follows: E. Howard Davies, Eva R. Farmer, Walter J. Evans, E. Faye Jones, Paul D. Morrow, Emily E. Sayre, Charles S. Bates, Bess Howe, Charles U. Thompson, Ethel I. Bebout, Frank R. Norris, Bertha M. McCrary, Walter E. Wright, Bessie Bollwine, Richard W. Watkins, Helen Achley.

The class flower is the red rose and the class colors are maroon and old gold, while the motto is "Non confuctus; sed initus."

After the large audience had been called to order and music had been rendered by the orchestra, the following excellent program was carried out:

March, "King of the Turf," Farbach-Tobani.

Invocation, Rev. W. H. Miller.

March, "Comedy King," Hirst.

"True Nobility," Paul David Morrow.

"Self Made Cripples," Emily Evelyn Sayre.

Waltz, King's Messenger, Velmore.

"Broken Promises," Frank Ray Norris.

"A Plea for Labor," Elizabeth Johnson Bollwine.

March, "Princess Pocahontas," Hoyt.

"The Value of Little Things," Bertha Mae McCrary.

"Americans for America," Walter John Evans.

Selection "Prince of Pilsen," Luters.

"Women's Progress in Twentieth Century," Ethel Inez Bebout.

"Enthusiasm," Walter E. Wright.

Caprice, "White Swan," Stalls.

Presentation of Diplomas.

Romance, "Poppies," Moret.

Benediction, Rev. David Dempster.

While only eight members of the class took an active part in the program all the members made careful preparation for the commencement, and their papers were never surpassed by those of any former class. The productions of those who had been selected to take part on the program were excellent and reflected great credit upon not only them but also on the instructors, and we would be doing them all an injustice were we to attempt to speak in terms of greater praise of one than another member of the class in the part performed.

At the close of the program proper

Supt. Clement in a nicely worded address, presented the diplomas and bade farewell to the class so far as their school work was concerned. There are always some warm and tender ties which bind student and instructor together after months of association that are not fully realized until the time for parting comes. Mr. Clements spoke feelingly in this respect, hoping that their communion together had been profitable, and that their future might be crowned with the greatest success.

The citizens of Granville may well feel proud of their schools and the good work done by all the instructors as well as the good management by the board of education. Granville schools were never in better condition under Supt. Clements and his able corps of instructors of which Miss Flora Hoover is the principal in the High school with Miss Florence R. Wagner as assistant. The board of education which is doing so much for the educational interests of Granville, is composed of Hiram LaFerre, president, Charles Slack, clerk, Dr. E. P. Cook, Fred Williams and John Geach.

BANQUET

Held at Music Hall by The City Bowling League Was a Complete Success.

The second annual banquet of the Newark City Bowling league, was a big success in every way, the speeches were witty, responses to the toasts were clever, and the banquet was complete in every detail. Great credit is due to the Graef brothers and the committee on entertainment, Messrs. W. G. Tracy, John Kates, O. Patten, F. Bausch and Ed L. Graef, and through their efforts the banquet was made a success.

The banquet was served in the Music Hall theater, and a long table, prettily decorated, seated over thirty guests. The following menu was served.

Soups, Clam Chowder, Mock Turtle Relishes, Radishes, Olives, Spring Onions, Celery, Mixed Pickles, Pickled Onions.

Entrées, Chicken Patties, Orange and Pineapple Ambrosia, Hamburger Loaf.

Punch, Imperial, Burgundy.

Roast, Roast Turkey with Cranberry Sauce.

Vegetables, Mashed Potatoes, Sliced Tomatoes, French Peas.

Salads, Potato Salad, Shrimp Salad, Deviled Eggs.

Pastry, Angel Food, Cream Horns, Lady Fingers, Tarts, Ice Cream.

Dessert, Assorted Fruit, Mixed Nuts, New Dates.

Refreshments, Milk, Consumer's Health Erew, Hommel's White Star, Vogel's Dr. Pepper, Cigars.

Music by the Music Hall orchestra.

Following the banquet Mr. Dan Camp, toastmaster, made a short speech in which he gave an exhaustive history of bowling that was decidedly interesting. Various members of the club were then called upon for answers to the "Roasts and Toasts." The answers were clever and funny, and this feature was much enjoyed. Mayor Atherton also made a speech that was much enjoyed.

Throughout the entire evening the Music Hall orchestra furnished delightful music and not a detail to make the meeting and banquet one long to be remembered was omitted.

The teams and captains in the City League are: Yellow Kids, Frank Wilson; Gilt Edge, W. G. Tracy; Flickers, Herbert Atherton; Western Stars, D. L. Hawkins.

AN OLD BARN.

There's an old barn in the country built many years ago when it was completed it looked as white as snow; 'twas painted with our Spartan White a lead that wears just right, and saves the wood that's painted and always keeps it white. Spartan White Lead is a scientifically pure White Lead and one that is being used more and more by practical painters every year. Manufactured by The Marietta Paint & Color Co., Marietta, O. Sold by Newark Paint Co., 31 West Church St., Newark, O.

Missouri marketed 107,155,658 dozens of eggs last year, for which was received more than $16,000,000.
